WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

HST: 'Russ Bluffing'

LITTLE FALLS, Minn. (AP)—Former President Harry Truman said today the Russians are bluffing over Berlin and that President Kennedy's speech called their bluff.

"The Russians are the greatest bluffers in the history of the world," Truman said. "When their bluff is called, they quit. Their bluff has been called by President Kennedy's speech this week."

Russia does not want war, and "is scared to death of what's behind her," he said, referring to Red China.

Cohen On The Rock

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Hands manacled and chained to guards, Meyer Harris Cohen, 47, better known as Mickey, stepped aboard a motor launch Friday, his belongings in two brown paper bags.

Then Mickey Cohen was taken to "The Rock" in San Francisco Bay — Alcatraz Prison.

Cohen went to the federal prison to serve a 15-year term for income tax evasion. He was carrying a book about Arnold Rothstein, a New York gambler who was slain in the thirties. The book's title: "The Big Bankroll."

Satellite Foiled

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—A power failure foiled a U.S. attempt today to launch its "Ranger I" moon probe—a complex satellite designed as an expermental forerunner of instrumented space craft.

The shot was called off just 25 minutes short of firing time.

Air Force officials said an overheated transformer at a local power station caused a complete cut off of power on the launching pad where the Atlas-Agena B Rocket was poised for takeoff.

Trains Collide

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — Two Baltimore and Ohio freight trains collided today at the village of Bridgeville, seven miles east of here, killing one person and injuring nine others.

Sheriff Fred G. Uffner, of Muskingum County, identified the victim as John Clark, of Newark, Ohio, a brakeman on one of the trains.

The sheriff said the nine injured crewmen were brought to hospitals here.

Officer Shoots Self

OAKLAND (UPI)—An Oakland police officer accidentally shot himself in the leg early today during a struggle with two men who tried to disarm him.

Patrolman Ora Arnold, 29, of Newark, said he stopped the men walking on a dark street for routine investigation at 2:45 a.m. When he turned momentarily to get file identification cards from his car, the man jumped him and tried to take his police pistol.

Arnold said he whirled, drew the revolver himself, and in the struggle shot himself in the upper leg.

He said he fired five shots at the assailants as they fled.

THE RELUCTANT ROBIN

There comes a time in the life of every bird when he or she must take that first step — or in this case take to the wing. The reluctant robin above won't. Mrs. George F. Phillips of 2566 Heatherstone Drive, Marinwood, and her son, Jack, a fifth grader at Mary Silveira School, look on in vain, hoping the bird will fly. The mother robin built the nest in a fuchsia tree just outside the Phillips living room window about a month ago. Two days ago there were three baby robins. Since then two have become airborne — this one is still grounded. (Independent-Journal photo)

Berlin Refugee Traffic Doesn't Go All One Way

BERLIN (AP) — Thousands of people flee from Communist East Germany every week, but a couple of hundred also leave the West in the hope of finding greener pastures under Red rule.

The number who deliberately choose Communism is small and apparently declining. Mostly they are people with little interest in politics.

A peak—about 50,000 — was arrived at in 1959, when life seemed to be improving under Communist rule. That was the year the flow to the West from the Communist east hit a 10-year low of 143,000.

The imensely larger number who leave the Communist area takes on more meaning when you remember that there are only a third as many people in the Red zone as in the West German Federal Republic.

Strictly speaking, neither group includes many refugees —people fleeing for safety. Those who quit West Germany for the Communist-ruled area are not hindered.

Leaving Communist rule without official permission is a punishable offense called "flight from the republic." Those who go, go secretly for fear of being caught and at least turned back. They do not risk taking much baggage. What they leave behind is confiscated.

Anyone quitting West Germany can take what he likes with him, send what he likes. He can sell what he doesn't want and convert the proceeds into Communist East German currency at a favorable rate.

The "refugees from capitalism" themselves were an odd lot.

There was a rather pretty girl, with her mother, who said they had left the east because of trouble with papa, but now it was all fixed up and they were going home.

Communist camp officials say they get many deserters from the West German army and young men who want to avoid conscription. Military service is not compulsory under the German Communists.

People in West Germany attach little importance to the small movement to the Communist-ruled East.

TUNIS CRISIS AT A GLANCE

COMBINED AP & UPI

United Nations — Turkey today laid before the U. N. Security Council a compromise resolution calling for full compliance with last week's Tunisian cease-fire order but eliminating any charges that France is at fault.

Paris — French blame Bizerte fighting for collapse of Algerian Peace Conference but hope talks will be resumed in about two months.

Woman, 84, Hit By Car

An 84-year-old woman suffered a broken left arm yesterday afternoon in Fairfax when she was apparently struck by a car driven by a San Francisco school teacher.

The victim, Mrs. Helga Thorusen of 180 Meernaa Avenue, Fairfax, is reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital.

Fairfax Police Chief Clifton C. Cordes reported that the driver, Roger M. Walsh, about 35, of 111 Toyon Drive, Fairfax, said he just started out after having halted for a stop sign at Bolinas Road and Broadway.

He told police Mrs. Thorusen had crossed from the east side of Bolinas when she unexpectedly turned to go back across the street and either collided with his front left fender or just stumbled. He said she was using a cane. Chief Cordes said there were no marks on Walsh's car.

Kennedy Gets All He Asked —And More

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy's expanding defense program was caught up in an embarrassment of riches today.

It seemed clear that the president would get every penny he has requested for defense forces to counter Russia's threat to Berlin. It seemed equally clear that Congress will give him many, many pennies he does not want.

3 POINTS

1. The Senate passed by unanimous roll call votaes two parts of the program unveiled by the president last Tuesday night in a radio-TV address. The bills had been introduced in the sometimes slow-moving Senate on Wednesday.

2. The House Armed Services Committee approved the same measures and cleared the way for action early next week, which would put the bills on the president's desk in record time.

3. The Senate military appropriations subcommittee incorporated funds for the Berlin build-up of non-nuclear forces into a 47-billion-dollar defense money bill, and also added bomber money which the administration has opposed.

SPENDING ?

The subcommittee's action was expected to be approved by the full Senate appropriations committee next week. It all but guaranteed that like his two immediate predecessors, Kennedy will have to decide whether to spend funds pressed on him by Congress.

The House-approved version of the giant defense money bill included 448 million dollars earmarked for procurement of manned bombers. The House made it clear that it would like Kennedy to spend more than the 220 million dollars he has budgeted for development of the supersonic B70 bomber. The rest of the 448 million dollars could be used for other bomber procurement under the House bill.

Although the Senate subcommittee did not announce its actions, informed sources said the group went the House one better and earmarked the full 448 million dollars for the B-70. Then the subcommittee added an additional 525 million dollars to keep production rolling on current heavy bomber types.

Informed sources said the subcommittee's bill, with funds reappropriated from prior years, will make some 47.5 billion dollars available for defense spending in the year which began July 1.

West Berlin Called Manufactured Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has prepared a new "White Paper" blast charging Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev with wantonly manufacturing an artificial crisis in West Berlin.

Officials disclosed today that the state department completed the document this week and sent to President John F. Kennedy for clearance.

It strongly indicts Khrushchev for refusing to let the inhabitants of Communist East Germany vote on their own future. It also rejects anew as immoral and illegal Khrushchev's demand that the United States, Britain and France pullout of West Berlin and permit it to become a demilitarized "free city" behind the Iron Curtain.

JFK ORDERED

The president himself ordered preparation of the paper as another weapon in his effort to rally world opinion against Russia's effort to impose its own "solution" to the problem of Berlin and divided Germany.

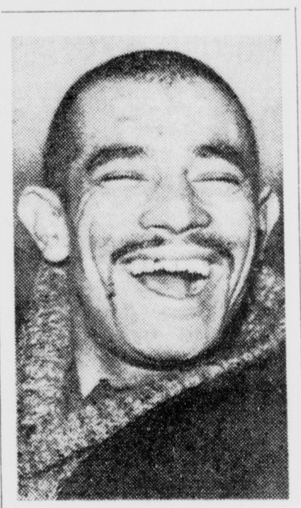

Officials said the exact publication date had not been set but it might come next week.

The document's emphasis on German "self-determination" is designed particularly, officials said, to enlist support of the new Asian and African nations for the Western position in Berlin. These nations base almost their entire policy on the right of "self-determination" of peoples.

FREE VOTE

The white paper, which probably will be issued in pamphlet form, points out that the West Berliners have voted overwhelming to let the allies remain there until there is a final settlement of the whole

4th Mental Escapee Nabbed

BEACON, N.Y. (AP)—Four of five escaped inmates of Matteawan State Hospital, including the slayer of Greenwich Village poet Maxwell Bodenheim, were captured today.

Harold Weinberg, 33, the poet's killer, was found hiding in woods a few miles from the institution shortly after three other inmates were picked up in the same vicinity.

Police believed the remaining escapee, Pedro Arroyo, 31, was hiding somewhere in the woodland area.

The five sawed an iron bar in a washroom of the institution shortly before midnight and fled.

John F. McNeill, superintendent of the hospital, said state troopers and hospital guards found the inmates. They offered no resistance.

The first escapees picked up were Raphael Batista, 35, Steve Wuchich, 40, and Walter Pierce, 19.

Weinberg and Arroyo was charged with murder; Batista with violation of the Sullivan anti-weapons law; Wuchich, extortion; and Pierce grand larceny and burglary.

Fair Forecast For Weekend

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Continued fair and warm weather is predicted over California this weekend except for fog and low overcast on the coast.

Low temperatures today were in the 60s and 70s in the Central Valley, in the 70s and 80s on the desert and in the 50s at most coast and coastal valley stations.

Winds were gentle to moderate on the coast and inland.

Big Shakeup For Russia Is Disclosed

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev will disclose tomorrow his plan for the most drastic shakeup in Soviet society since Lenin produced the blueprint for Communism in 1919, according to informed sources.

The sources said the program, to be made public in 19 pages of the Sunday edition of the communist party newspaper Pravda, is aimed at surpassing the United States standard of living by 1982.

They said it would reflect the superiority of Khrushchev's doctrine of "peaceful coexistence" over the harder line taken by the Chinese Communists and be based on an economy of "abundance for all."

The program will substantially modify party and government structures and restrict the rights and privileges of officials, including a gradual democratization of party apparatus that will limit tenure in of-

Two Cubans Decide To Stay In U.S.

MIAMI (AP) — Two of Fidel Castro's 10 prisoner-envoys decided today not to return to Cuba. They said they want to stay and fight Castro again.

But others who participated in the Bay of Pigs invasion, in which 1,197 men were captured, have volunteered to take their place, said Gustavo Garcia Montes, spokesman for the prisoner group.

Garcia Montes said he and seven other prisoners plan to return Monday as scheduled, perhaps accompanied by two volunteers. He said these would be from among invaders who managed to reach the United States safely.

Mirto Collazo and Reynaldo Pico, both 27, charged Castro with reneging on his offer to free fellow prisoners for tractors, and said they wanted to remain so they could fight him again.

"We came to the United State to obtain freedom for our prisoner companions," said Collazo in an interview. "We tried

Marinite Charged With Hit And Run

A Corte Madera man was charged with hit and run driving last night following an accident in which a pregnant woman was injured.

Keith J. Thompson, 31, the suspect, was found at his home at 21 Prince Royal Passage, Corte Madera, about an hour after the accident. He was traced by the California Highway Patrol because a quick-thinking witness spotted his license number at the scene of the accident.

Injured was Mrs. Jennie Kartinos of Daly City, who was treated by her private physician for reportedly minor injuries.

Driving the car in which she was a passenger was George J. Kartinos, 41, a San Francisco court reporter. Kartinos told California Highway Patrolman George Heart he was driving toward Sausalito about 400 feet north of Fort Baker when Thompson's station wagon passed another car travelling in the same direction at about 60 miles an hour.

Kartinos said he attempted to get off the road but that Thompson's car struck his as it passed.

When questioned at home by Heart, Thompson denied being in an accident. He was cited for hit and run and passing without sufficient clearance.

'MUCH HAPPINESS'

International Beauty Named—Miss Holland

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Miss Holland, 19 - year - old Stam (Stanny) van Baer, a brown-eyed fashion and photograph model, last night was selected as Miss International Beauty of 1962.

The triumph earned the 5-foot, 6-inch Amsterdam native — hopeful of a movie or theatrical career — a first prize of $10,000 at the conclusion of the second international beauty congress.

Miss Brazil, 19-year-old Vera Marie Brauner, was runnerup, with Miss Spain, Carmen Cervera, 18, third. Edna Vac Vicar 20, Miss Canada, was fourth, with Miss Iceland, Sigrun Ragnordottir, an "inside" favorite of the girls, fifth.

"I feel much happiness," said the tired contest winner, who complained only about the weight of the crown placed on her head. "I'm just so happy, that's all I can say."

Still uncertain about her plans, Miss Holland said she wanted to call her mother, Lilly, in Holland, to discuss the future. "But right now all I want is to go to bed," she said, complaining of a headache.

This is the first visit to the U. S. for Miss van Baer, who confided she had a boy friend at home.

Stanny is expected to receive a screen test from a major movie studio on Monday.

Miss Brazil received $4,800 as a cash prize; Miss Spain, $2,500; Miss Canada, $1,500; and Miss Iceland, $1,000. All get trophies and the 10 other semi-finalists pickup $200 each.

The new Miss International Beauty, successor to Stella Marquez, of Colombia, will be crowned tonight at a ball which winds up beauty contest activities.

Juvenile Hall Help Question Before Board

Decision is scheduled to be made by the Marin County Board of Supervisors Monday afternoon concerning whether temporary extra help at juvenile hall is to be retained.

Some of the supervisors have indicated agreement with the probation department's view that an enlarged juvenile hall needs more workers. But this department has been in a sensitive spot with several supervisors quick to charge that its need for money is exaggerated.

A factual survey of occupancy, duties and other subjects is expected to be given by Administrator Alan Bruce.

Another point on which the supervisors have been critical is the test questions given in county personnel examinations. Renewal of the annual contract with the California State Personnel Board which furnishes the questions will be up for discussion Monday.

The Monday session starting at 2 p.m. is to consider only two items according to the agenda — communications and "continued matters" not specified. But from these two categories have arisen many a lengthy discussion in the past.

Tuesday's session due to get under way at 1 p.m. will see efforts to reach firm decisions on the question of a McPhail Co. butane tank installation at Point Reyes Station, hotly debated in the past, and also Benjamin Bonelli's appeal against county planners' rejection of tentative maps for two further units of Drakes Bay subdivision.

No Plumbers Show For Code Meeting

Not a single plumber showed up Thursday night at a public meeting held at the county courthouse to discuss the proposed adoption of the 1961 edition of the Uniform Plumbing Code.

About six persons attended but none was a plumber, said Chief Building Inspector Otto H. Meyer. The group discussed the code but reached no decision.

The next step will be for the County Board of Appeals to call a public meeting on the Uniform Building Code, Meyer announced. This meeting is expected in a week or two.

'State Fire Danger Worst In History'

FRESNO (AP) — Residents in the central Sierra "just don't seem to realize they are faced with one of the worst fire potentials in history," say state and county officials.

"The fire potential in the Central California area in three times greater than normal," says Deputy State Forester Cecil E. Metcalf. "But people don't seem to be aware of the situation."

Metcalf says mountain residents for the most part are not careless with fire, but many are careless about leaving their property set up for possible destruction . . .

"Most seem to think 'it can't happen here," but many mountain communities are in grave danger of being wiped out," he said.

Metcalf and Madera County Farm Advisor Walter Emrick say more persons should clean their property of brush and other inflammable trash and cut fire lanes with bulldozers and plows.

They say a 43,000-acre blaze that killed two persons and ruined the towns of Ahwahnee and Nipinwassee was stopped rather easily when it reached fire breaks or old controlled burn areas.

Emrick says more brush cutting and controlled burning should be done at strategic spots where fire fighters can turn back flames with backfires. He says a lot of damage caused by the recent big fire could have been avoided if those practices had been carried out.

Expert Takes A Look At Nation's Aging

NEW YORK (UPI)—A veteran medical scientist doesn't exactly advocate throwing caution to the winds in how one lives one's life but he challenges the "ultra-cautious medical counseling" which is dished out to many aged and aging people.

Dr. Alvan L. Barach, who is emeritus himself (as a professor of medicine at Columbia University) wants a "new look" at older people, especially those with chronic disease, for the purpose of "lifting the limitations which too often handicap legitimate goals of activity."

He cited the increasing number of scientific colleagues who have found that the lack of activity imposed on the aging and involving mind as well as body, does harmful things to heart and arteries, to the adrenal glands and even to the ability to breathe properly. Yet medical science knows that "when suddenly exposed to an exciting situation, such as a fire in the house, they may abruptly become free of wheezing."

The assumption is the excitement reacted on adrenal glands which released substances helpful to asthma into the blood. "Adventure," continued Barach, "is man's way of heightening the awareness of existence. A life which includes some hazard seems to be a requisite for many mature men and women."

Of course, it's a fact no one easily makes "any radical change in another person's accustomed attitude of mind," he said in setting forth his views in the technical organ of the American Geriatrics Society.

And it's a fact doctors have personal bias like everyone else. A doctor can encourage a fuller life for his patient if his own bias is toward the full life.

"If the doctor himself strives to live a warm human life, in addition to striving for expert knowledge, he may countenance an adventurous outlook," Barach said. "Otherwise, he may counsel a program of cautious living. Whether life will be prolonged thereby, it will certainly seem longer to those who endured an existence of excessive austerity."

Barach is 66. Upon becoming emeritus in his professorship, he took on a full life as attending physician at New York's Presbyterian Hospital. Only last month he reported on almost 100 cases in which shortness of breath upon exertion had been corrected by a new exercise technique.

Among the scientific findings which he cited was an autopsy study of older persons who in life were believed to have lung disease. The study showed they actually had had no lung disease.

"Their history of shortness of breath on exertion was therefore explained on the basis of physical unfitness, the end-result of devotion to regimens of inactivity," he said. "It has become clear that muscular atrophy which follows programs of excessive rest leads ultimately to invalidism."

San Anselmo Schools Budget Meeting Set

The San Anselmo School District Trustees will hold a public hearing Tuesday at 8 p.m. to consider the proposed $901,003 district budget. The hearing will be held in the multi-use room of the Isabel Cook School.

Also on the agenda of Tuesday's meeting will be discussion of the proposed Sunny Hills land acquisition and the Wade Thomas School expansion program.

LT. JOHN F. KENNEDY, RET.
'Failure is no disgrace'

Kennedy Passed Over For Naval Promotion

HYANNIS PORT (UPI)—John F. Kennedy may be president of the United States, but in view of the U.S. Navy this is only partial consolation for not being promoted in the Naval reserve.

The president has received a letter of condolence addressed to Lt. John F. Kennedy, USNR, Ret., the White House, Washington, D.C. It is signed by Adm. Arleigh Burke, retiring chief of Naval operations.

"It is easy for me to understand the deep disappointment of able and faithful reserve officers who have failed of selection (for promotion) — not once, but frequently, several times," the letter said.

The letter went on to say that Kennedy received Burke's "deepest sympathy," consoled him with the thought that many who failed to achieve promotion made a success of civilian life and assured him that this "failure . . . is no disgrace."

In fact, Kennedy did not fail to get promotion, but retired after being seriously hurt in the collision of his PT boat with a Japanese destroyer.

Slight Depreciation For Weapons Carrier

MEMPHIS (AP)—Twenty-three weapons carriers that cost the Army $2.25 million dollars in World War II were sold at auction here recently for about $900 each.

The cannon-carrying vehicles went as scrap to four dealers who planned to cut them up for smelting, saving the engines and transmissions.

Driver Injured In Rear-End Car Wreck In Ross

A Marinwood woman was treated at Marin General Hospital for serious facial injuries after a rear-end auto collision at Lagunitas Road and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross at 6 p.m. Thursday.

Mrs. Frances J. Falcon of 375 Johnstone Drive, was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday with lacerated lips and an injury to her right knee.

According to Ross police, Mrs. Falcon's car crashed into the rear of a car driven by Genevieve M. Vrideaux-Brune of San Mateo when the latter stopped for a traffic signal. Mrs. Vrideaux-Brune's two-year-old daughter, Cynthia, was checked for injuries at Ross General Hospital and released.

Mrs. Falcon was cited for following another vehicle too closely.

ZELINSKY SPEAKS

What's Opening In Tiburon? A Restaurant's Opening, By Golly!

By FRED WYATT

Fred G. Zelinsky, San Francisco tycoon and Tiburon developer, like the hero of a Clarence Buddington Kelland businessman story, shot his cuffs and waved proudly overhead.

"Looka those floors!" he exclaimed. "Laminated! I never told them to do that. If the pilars should break, the building would remain suspended. Solid!

"This will cost, with all the equipment and other facilities, nearly $400,000. It will be the most magnificent restaurant in Marin County. And it won't compete with anybody. It will bring more people to the other places in Tiburon."

Zelisky was watching construction of The Dock, an expense account-class charcoal broiler eating place he is building on Tiburon's Main Street. He said it will open Aug. 10 to 15, although the carpenters were still hammering on the lumber as he talked.

It is to be operated by Ernest Van Asperen of San Rafael.

Zelinsky expressed pride in the fact that it had been designed by San Francisco architect Mario L. Gaidano, whom he called "The gold medal architect of restaurants."

"People around here say I own Tiburon, that I'm after a monopoly," Zelinsky shouted above the din. "I just want to keep Tiburon quaint and lovely, as it should be.

"Note that I'm doing nothing to block the view of Sam's lovely restaurant," Zelinsky went on, referring to the Anchor Cafe, restaurant next door.

Zelinsky unfolded further the attitude or philosophy he and his wife Juanita had developed toward Tiburon since settling in Belvedere five years ago.

"I never buy a business," he said. "I only want to be the landlord."

Between the eternal poundings of the carpenters' hammers, Zelinsky also:

1. Confirmed that he had bought the Varney's Hardware property in Tiburon, about 100 feet from The Dock, from Bud and Dick Varney, for "a little less than $250,000."

2. Disclosed that he had bought the Racoon Strait maritime center property on Tiburon Boulevard, not much farther away, from Kirby Atterbury and Associates for "a little under $300,000."

3. Announced that he had just leased the 2,000-square feet of floor space beneath The Dock to Bennett Wren, formerly of Oklahoma City, and Kirk Bassett, formerly of Columbus, Ind., who will open The Bird and Hound, a high-priced men's and women's clothing store also selling gifts and bronze and stainless steel outdoor furniture.

Wren and Bassett are paraphrasing their last names in calling their store the Bird and Hound. Bassett, a thin young Ivy League type, stressed that their merchandise "will be expensive."

Bassett and Zelinsky said it will not compete with any store already in Tiburon.

"All the other business people in Tiburon have wished the new store well," Zelinsky said.

He later referred to "the business people" as "all my tenants."

The Varney Hardware deal was "still in title" but definitely had been "closed," Zelinsky said.

He said he is acquiring the land on which both Varney's Hardware and Varney's Marine stand.

The hardware store will continue to be operated by Dick and Bud Varney under lease, he said. Zelinsky plans to "put an operator in charge" of Varney's Marine and expand it.

"The Varneys want to get out of the boat business," he said.

Not involved is Varney's Hardware in Mill Valley, owned by a third brother, Jack Varney.

Zelinsky said he'll have the Racoon Strait Maritime Center buildings repainted "to take away that zig zag look."

He said "I'll see that the proper color harmony is used to bring it into Tiburon tone."

He said he also will add a third building to the center. He is asking San Rafael architect Felix Warburg, who designed the center, to prepare "sketches, perspectives and layouts to look at."

Returning to the subject of his new restaurant, Zelinsky said it will have boat storage space and he will keep the channel clear for seagoing craft.

On the first floor behind the Bird and Hound will be a snack bar in connection with the restaurant.

San Rafael Library Gets Gift Of Scandinavia Books

Three large books on "Scandinavia, Past and Present," arrived at the San Rafael Public Library yesterday as a gift from a Danish publishing firm in Copenhagen.

Mrs. Vivian Smith, chief librarian, said that an accompanying letter explained that the volumes were sent by publisher Arnkrone in Copenhagen as an expression of gratitude to the United States. The letter, signed by an Edvard Henriksen, says the peoples of Scandinavia are grateful to the United States for what the U.S. meant to them during and after the last war. Scandinavians hope the books will help strengthen the ties and understanding between America and the Scandinavian countries.

The first two volumes deal with the historical and cultural development of Scandinavia. The third volume is on modern Scandinavia, its way of life, forms of government, social conditions, laws and education.

Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden joined in the project to publish and distribute the books to American libraries.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Black Muslim Violence

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police battled an unruly Harlem mob for four hours last night and early today before controlling a near-riot said to have been touched off by the extremist Black Muslim Society.

Seven men were arrested and two patrolmen were slightly injured by flying debris hurled by the mob. Two of those arersted were charged with looting stores with smashed-in display windows.

Police were unable to pinpoint a cause for the melee but said the Black Muslim sect "was definitely involved."

The riot broke out at about 11 p.m. when crowds on Seventh Avenue between 124th and 125th streets joined others on rooftops in hurling garbage and bottles.

Police called to the scene and firemen answering a bash of false alarms were met by a barrage of debris. Many store windows were shattered.

More than 100 policemen battled until about 3 a.m. before peace was restored to the area.

She's A Pain

VIENNA (AP)—Stomach ulcers are no grounds for divorce, an Austrian judge has ruled in rejecting a civil servant's claim his wife's nagging made his ulcers hurt.

The judge noted the man had been married 20 years and had not complained about his wife's conduct until recently.

New Soviet Policy

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda predicted today Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's new Communist Party program coming out tomorrow will have a far-reaching effect on all Soviet people.

The Communist Party organ said publication of the program will touch off "broad and thorough" policy discussions among party organizations throughout the Soviet Union.

"The Program," Pravda said, "will bring about a new rise in the ideological life of the party and the people."

Chaplin On Trip

JAKARTA (AP) — Comedian Charlie Chaplin, his wife, Ona, and a teen-age son and daughter arrived in Jakarta today to renew "old memories."

Chaplin said he remembers Indonesia as a "beautiful paradise." During a week-long visit he will travel to central Java and Bali. The Chaplins were met by the sultan of Jogjakarta.

A Real Brief One

LEICESTER, England (UPI)—Ted Downes, 73, awoke yesterday morning and saw a man standing by his bed.

Dawnes gave chase but stopped 50 yards down the road when he realized he had no clothes on.

Safety Lesson

WEBSTER, N.Y. (AP) — After Webster Peace Justice Jack Van Ingen sentenced 21 speeders he invited them to watch a demonstration of the distances needed to stop while traveling at various speeds. Oscar, a sawdust-filled dummy, was thrown onto a road in front of a car driven by an officer. At 60 miles an hour, it took 253 feet to stop the car.

Divided City

BERLIN (AP)—Red-ruled East Germany today warned citizens that they will "get themselves into trouble" unless they make up their minds which side they are on.

The warning was directed specifically at the estimated 80,000 East Germans who still hold jobs in West Berlin.

Neues Deutschland, the official Communist daily, acknowledged that there is an advantage in such jobs—better money. It went on:

"But the time has come when this can not go on any longer. People who do not know what side they belong on today, will get themselves into trouble."

Strike Threatened

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE—About 125 civilian security guards have threatened to strike at this West Coast missile base in protest over a reported 45-cent wage cut.

Curtis W. Walker, a guard spokesman said yesterday that the strike would coincide with the visit here of a blue-ribbon presidential commission that includes Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg, AFL-CIO President George Meany, industrialist Henry Kaiser and Auto Union President Walter Reuther.

A base spokesman said the strike was not expected to impair construction work at missile launch sites since Air Force personnel would be available for such duty.

Walker said a new company, the M&T Engineering Corp. of Philadelphia, was recently awarded a contract to provide security guards. The firm cut wages from $2.25 an hour to $1.85 an hour and refused to meet with the union to bargain for a new contract, Walker said.

'Brushfire' Wars

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Lt. Gen. Doyle Hickey, who was ordered to halt his 3rd Armored Division 54 miles short of Berlin in 1945, said yesterday Russia apparently plans to fight "brushfire" wars.

Hickey told a reunion of his old outfit that he doubted the Soviets would launch a full-scale war over Berlin. But he said the United States must be ready for "brushfire" wars started by the Soviets anywhere in the world.

"I don't think we can do anything else other than stand on our rights in Berlin," he said in a speech on his 70th birthday. "It's a symbol of the United States and of other free nations. We must show our resolution to fight for those rights if need be."

Hickey said he "felt a great mistake was being made" when his division was ordered to stop its advance on Berlin at the close of World War II.

Cardinal Ailing

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Nicola Cardinal Canali, head of Vatican City's administrative commission, gravely ill, survived the night under an oxygen tent, but doctors said there is little hope for his recovery.

The 87-year-old cardinal is suffering from bronchial pneumonia. His condition is complicated by a circulatory ailment.

Hitler's Book Flops

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — "Hitler's Second Book,' published this week from old manuscripts, was a critical as well as a commercial failure.

Only one review of the book appeared. The institute for contemporary history published it, chiefly as a source for historiwith foreign policy and was intended as a sequel to "Mein ans. The book deals mainly Kampf," but Hitler never got around to bringing it out.

The Sueddeustche Zeitung of Munich said the book only repeated what has been long known: "Hitler was intoxicated by war."

"He who has the strength to plow through his swollen phraseology will find little pleasure," it said. "There also is little new in the manuscript."

The newspaper said the book "drips with blood" and deals cynically with the spoils of war Hitler expected Germany to win.

The German invasion of Russia, it said, appears less like "an enormous blunder, but as the alpha and omega of the entire National Socialist (Nazi) Policy, which the Nazis wanted to keep under a smokescreen of propaganda."

Invitation For Yuri

GENOA, Italy, (AP) — Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin has been invited to celebrations here honoring Christopher Columbus. A feature of this year's October fete will be awards for pioneers in communications and Gagarin looks like a good bet to win one. Genoa claims to be the birthplace of the discoverer of America.

Indonesia Gets Loan

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Yugoslavia has granted Indonesia credits totalling 15 million dollars under an agreement signed today. The new credits are in addition to 10 million dollars granted by Yugoslavia in 1959.

He will attend the conference of American government officials from North Africa and the Middle East. He led a similar conference in Lagos of American officials in black Africa.

G. Mennen Williams, U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, who also attended the Lagos conference, left for Washington last night.

Setback For Sinatra

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A superior judge has issued a temporary order restraining Frank Sinatra and Reprise Records Co. from selling a record whose title paraphrases another Sinatra disc.

Judge Gordon L. Files granted Capitol Records' request yesterday to bar Sinatra and Reprise from issuing "Swing Along With Me" until a suit is tried to determine if the title too closely resembles another Sinatra record, "Come Swing With Me."

CAPITOL REPORT

Where State Stands On Civil Defense

By EDWIN S. CAPPS
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — Californians, and probably the rest of the United States, have "exactly nowhere" to go in event of an enemy attack, a top official in the California Disaster Office (CDO) said today.

The disaster office, a branch of the office of Gov. Edmund G. Brown, operates on a budget of just under one million dollars a year and is charged, under the law, with providing for "a fully prepared state government . . . prepared county and city governments . . . a coordinated and integrated federal-state-local emergency preparedness program . . . a well-informed and adequately prepared public."

But a quick check in the wake of President John F. Kennedy's nationwide address would indicate none of these stated purposes are advanced to any practical degree. The check, with the CDO and the city of Sacramento civil defense office, showed these problems:

1. While the CDO feels evacuation is outdated, the Sacramento office is having new maps printed to show escape routes.

2. Plans for moving the governor and his immediate staff would put ihm in a "less than desirable" location.

3. With the exception of four local studies, the balance of the state doesn't even know what existing shelter is available or where it is. The Sacramento office had no maps or knowledge of such shelters.

4. The governor, following the President's message, said a study of possible shelters would be started when funds were available.

The CDO official, Gen. Ewart G. Plank, chief of the engineering division of federal assistance in the office, said evacuation of the people is an outdated theory that went out with the atom bomb.

"We had evacuation plans under the days of the atom bomb," Plank said. "That provided an lleged solution to the problem which didn't cost anybody any money.

"But he who tells you that you can go to a certain place and escape fallout knows more than we do," Plank said. "There are so many variable factors as to where strikes might be made and what the wind conditions are that it's impossible to say in advance where anyone should go.

"In other words," he continued, "heading for the hills is no more solution than sitting in your front yard."

Plank was asked about shelter programs. The CDO's plan for an underground installation just south of Sacramento to house its office and those of other top state officials was killed by the department of finance before it even got to the legislature. Plank estimated there might be available shelter for 10 to 15 per cent of the people in underground garages and basements.

Prompted by the President's message, the state finally may move ahead to the first step—that of finding what existing shelters are available.

When asked is evacuation is an outdated solution and what shelter is available in existing buildings is not known, where can the people go?

"Nowhere," Plank answered. "In my opinion, that is exactly where the United States is, as of this minute."

Army Planning Bay Explosion For Science

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The State Lands Commission yesterday authorized the federal government to set off some 6,000-pound "non-nuclear" explosions this fall in the ocean off Santa Monica and San Francisco, and in the South San Francisco Bay.

The government said the blasts "will provide seismic wave propagaption information which will improve our national scientific capabilities of detecting and identifying underground nuclear explosions and natural earthquakes."

The blasts will be within 25 miles of the seismographs at the University of California at Berkeley and Cal Tech at Pasadena.

The government said the field work will commence Aug. 21 and end before Dec. 31.

Allen Thode of the Army Corps of Engineers said the charges would be a maximum of 6,000 pounds of high explosive.

Dr. John Healy, also of the engineers, said the blasts probably will not be noticed more than a half-mile to one mile away.

"The only ones who might be aware of it would be fishermen who might see the action at the blast site," he said.

Star Advises Gals Not To Wed Young

By VIVIAN BROWN

Hold those orange blossoms, girl.

Summer marriages are likely to put a maiden in a marrying frame of mind. At 19 or 20 a girl is likely to feel she's on the shelf if all her 18-year-old friends have taken the vow. But it could be that you are fortunate not to have rushed into the bridal lineup.

"It's wiser to wait than to marry because everyone else is marrying," says actor Frank Aletter of the television series 'Bringing Up Buddy."

Aletter didn't marry until, at 32, he found "the most delightful girl in the world, who had been waiting too." She is Lee Ann Merriwether, Miss America of 1955, now 26.

"Lee was surrounded by men during those years when she was the toast of America. But we're both happy she waited because we've been divinely happy for three years and have the most adorable baby in the world," says Frank.

Frank had a good female audience. He had met a lot of women on Broadway when he played in "The Bells Are Ringing," and "Mr. Roberts." Later he met the glamor girls in Hollywood when he began a television series. But few made any impression on him.

Frank is in favor of knowing well the person you marry, because the courtship period is a sham, he says, with each person on best behavior.

Maturity makes for a better marriage all around, Frank points out. "There is more give and take and the individuals do not feel they are abused because they must be helpmates." He explains:

"I don't think people believe me when I say that I help with the cooking, house cleaning and care of the baby at home. I am a champion diaperer, too. I just think it is my responsibility as a husband to help out. Maybe because I am older."

Jacqueline Has 32nd Birthday

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Jcaqueline Kennedy got 1,500 cards, a boxful of gifts, a present from the President and a cake with candles yesterday on her 32nd birthday.

President Kennedy flew to Hyannis Port, Mass., to help his wife celebrate. The White House said there would be a cake with candles mainly to please the Kennedy children.

The public sent the First Lady 1,500 birthday cards, the White House said, and about 25 gifts—mostly handkerchiefs, pictures and "small memento."

The President's gift will remain a secret, the White House said.

Mrs. Kennedy marked her first birthday as First Lady a much more confident woman than she was when she moved into the White House in January.

In the first few months she shunned people, retreated to her weekend estate in the Virginia horse country as often as possible and declined the hundreds of invitations that always flow into the White House from women's groups.

She has only allowed one interview with reporters—with a television commentator to whom she told the troubles of living in the White House, mainly her desires to raise her children privately.

She has shown no interest in politics, nor any interest in backing charities and social welfare projects.

Her main project has been redecorating the White House in early Americana. Some renovation is planned for the executive mansion while she is vacationing in Hyannis Port.

She doesn't like to be called "Jackie," nor does she like the term "First Lady," but there are signs that she is beginning to like her role.

GERTRUDE JO ANNE HANKEN

Miss Hanken To Marry John King

Mr. and Mrs. August Hanken of Kentfield are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their only daughter, Gertrude Jo Anne, to John Lord King Jr., of Belvedere.

The bride-elect, who has three brothers, Carl, Alfred and Helmut, was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School. She attended College of Marin. Grace Ball Secretarial School and Schloss Gallenberg in Germany.

The prospective bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lord King of Belvedere, attended Thacher School and was graduated from Tamalpais High School and Menlo College.

The wedding will be an event of Sept. 17 in the First Presbyterian Church, San Rafael.

New Revillon Styles Feminine And Feline

By NORA W. MARTIN

PARIS (UPI)—Madame Jacques Revillon today displayed new fur styles designed to make women feminine, fine and feline."

Double-fur coats, cozy and warm with "Eskimo" or pixie-hoods and the wildest look yet were offered by Revillon. There was even a mink jacket worked on the bias to match latest Paris fashion trends.

New campus and winter-sports styles were called "Revillon 20 ans."

While garments for juniors, made of cozy but modest pelts, ranged in price from $100 up, some of the de luxe coats, combining two furs or made of rare and precious furs, were nearer the $10,000 tag.

Revillon used printed pony skin for reversible three-quarter length jackets lined and bordered by shaggy, uncurled Mongolian lamb. The flat pony-fur side was printed in a zebra or a giraffe pattern. They were shown with streamlined black velvet slacks.

For winter resorts, Revillon's fur ponchos were equally exciting. Named "Ruglets," these ponchos reversed from the shaggy dekinked lamb side to smooth squirrel fur. One oval "Ruglet" reversed from white Mongolian lamb side to lemon yellow squirrel fur.

On sporty fur jackets, "Eskimo Hoods" could be unbuttoned to become wide deep sailor collars. Pointed pixie-hoods topped furlined jackets.

A "Tortoise Panther" turned up worked into a jacket with its spots shaped like the pattern on tortoise shell.

FUR-LINED FUR

Mme. Revillon also showed "Glutton," a deep brown soft alluring fur. For women past 20, Revillon suggested fur to line fur. A Brazil otter coat was lined in blue-fox. Nutria came with ivory-tinted hair-seal as lining. A spotty jaguar coat was lined in black seal.

For women who remained faithful to mink, Revillon offered a black mink jacket "on the bias" with the pelts worked in diagonal lines and the buttonless front worn crossed over.

)Revillon was the first of yesterday's four showings. Chanel and Lanvin-Castillo showed wares in the afternoon followed by newcomer Miguel Ferreras of New York.

The House of Dior was the pace-setter of the Paris fashion style show earlier with a new "charm" line which emphasized a slender silhouette with a tight-fitting bodice and a high narrow bosom.

The first show yesterday offered some of the most beautiful, luxurious and expensive new fur fashions in Paris. The old and famous house of Revillon is known the world over for quality and workmanship of their furs.

COCO'S SUITS

"Coco" Chanel opened her Oriental-looking salons to show the latest version of the famed little "Chanel suit." Since all "best-dressed" women on earth own and wear Chanel styles, details on these practical garments were eagerly awaited.

Lanvin-Castillo, best known for his perfume business, had some scintillating numbers ready for his showing. Ever since Barbara Hutton first bought an entire Lanvin-Castillo collection to replenish her wardrobe, Lanvin clothes have become style-setters for millionaires and rich little girls.

Girls and women now spending their holidays at the beach will have to start slenderizing so they can take advantage of the new Paris "charm" look during the next fashion season.

Summer Brings More Trouble When Wild Kids Take The Lead

Wild kids get wilder this time of the year and summer brings trouble. Even some good kids are led astray. Are the teen-agers in your neighborhood having parties like these?

"My daughter went on a sleeping bag party," an anguished mother writes. "She is 15. The party was overnight at a cabin out of town. I assumed it would be chaperoned but it wasn't. The name came from the fact there was one small sleeping bag per couple. There was a great deal of drinking. I'm shocked beyond words. Dr. Barbour, warn other parents about sleeping bag parties!"

"My son came home in a daze," a father writes, "after a party with some older neighborhood boys. He confessed he had smoked marijuana and had taken several colored capsules. He didn't recover for many hours. He is 16. Please tell parents to supervise their sons' parties. This is awful!"

"My teen-age daughter gave a party for her friends," a mother writes. "I am a widow. There was no man to help me chaperon it. Some uninvited hoodlums came in. They gave alcoholic drinks to the children. I asked them to leave but they wouldn't. The party became a drunken brawl. I was never so humiliated. Please advise other parents to call the police if gate crashers turn up at their parties!"

I am glad to echo the three warnings. During summer vacation young people have time on their hands. They flock together. The older and tougher ones often take the lead. Bad parties result. Beware of overnight affairs. Supervise your son's activities carefully. And don't temporize with gate crashers. Protect your children, friends.

READERS' FORUM

(Q) "How can I keep my 3-year-old son from being impudent? He is rude to me."

J. D.

(A) Explain in advance what is wrong and how he should change. Encourage his efforts to be polite. Be consistent. Try never to let him get by with impudence. If necessary, spank. Now is the time to establish permanent respect for you.

Wild Party Winds Up In County Jail

Sheriff's Deputy Arthur Wiggins tried to quiet a "noisy party" early today and wound up in a melee with a Kentfield family of four.

Wiggins answered a call from Marie Gee of 4 Kentdale Avenue, Kentfield, who complained of noise keeping her awake at 12:35 a.m. today. She said the noise sounded like a party.

The officer drove around the corner to Manor Road and saw Roger Bernard Kane, 50, standing in front of his home at 25 Manor Road. When Wiggins asked if there was a party going on there, Kane reportedly said,"it's none of your business. Get off my property unless you have a search warrant."

Wiggins reported that Kane appeared intoxicated. The officer told Kane he was under arrest, but Kane refused to be put into the patrol car.

When the officer attempted to place Kane into the car, Kane's wife, Mary Helen Kane, 48, and their two daughters, Carolyn Ann, 21, and Susan Mary, 19, came to his aid in what Wiggins describes as a "melee."

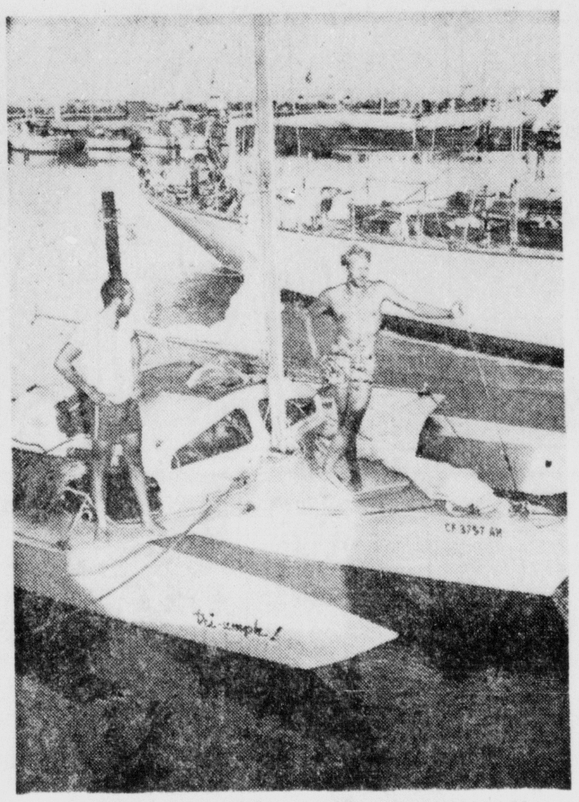

Wiggins called Larkspur police for assistance, getting the aid of Officers Jerry Mattos and John Cottle. The three of them managed to place Kane into the waiting patrol car.

Kane was jailed for suspicion of being drunk and resisting arrest. He was bailed out two hours later for $551.25. He is to appear for arraignment in Municipal Court Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

MARIN SAILORS SAFE IN HAWAII

Richard Gerling of Mill Valley (right), skipper, and Ned Dwyer of Terra Linda relax aboard their three-hulled trimaran Triumph in Honolulu this week after 22-day sail from San Pedro. They were unofficial entries in the Transpacific Yacht Race. Arthur Piver of Mill Valley skippered another trimaran, the Lodestar, on the same journey. The Marin sailors were "lost" in the Pacific about 15 days out of California but were re-spotted by Coast Guard search planes. (AP Wirephoto)

to get enough tractors for that. We did not succeed.

"So, if there are no tractors, we believe there must be bullets. We are remaining with the intention of continuing the fight against the despot Fidel Castro."

Pico declared: "Fidel Castro is a fraud, and what he wants is to spar for time, delay any armed action. He never fulfills any pact, and goes from contradiction to contradiction. We do not want to continue lending ourselves to such a nefarious aim.

"We believe our companions and all political prisoners in Cuba must be freed in some way. To do that, we are ready to risk our lives again under any circumstances."

The 10 prisoner-envoys were paroled by Castro to come here to negotiate.

Collazo said he did not believe other prisoners would suffer because of their decision not to return.

fice and bar re-election, the sources said.

Eventually, if the program went according to plan, the average Soviet citizen would get such benefits as free public transportation, housing and bread.

The sources said it would contain these other features:

1. Prohibit multiple jobs and drastically reduce property ownership, making it inconsistent with party membership to own a house or certain other forms of private property.

2. Greater worker participation in planning and management of industry through increased role of trade unions.

3. A 600 ruble ($660 at the official Soviet rate of exchange) a month wage ceiling for all citizens. It was understood that the wage ceiling already is effective — presumably including Khrushchev.

Top Soviet office holders now enjoy other benefits, such as free apartments, country houses and automobiles, while they are in office and presumably would retain them under the new program.

The object of publishing the plan is to make it well known throughout the country by the time the 22nd Party Congress begins in mid-October.

Drunken Drivers Draw $158 Fines

Two drunken drivers were fined and put on six months probation yesterday by Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court.

The two were Robert L. McChesnie, 39, of Paso Robles, formerly of Mill Valley; and Charles Lynwood Buchter, 51, of San Francisco. Each was fined $158, and for the next 90 days, they may drive only for work and in emergencies.

McChesnie, a civilian worker at Ft. Barry, was caught on Highway 101 last April 15. He had a prior conviction in San Luis Obispo in 1954, but this was stricken from the record because it occurred seven years ago.

Buchter, who works for the San Francisco Fire Department, was caught on Highway 101 on July 21.

BERLIN

German problem. But the Russians have never permitted the inhabitants of Communist East Germany and East Berlin a free vote on their status.

The paper, following up the recent lengthy U. S. aide memoire to Khrushchev on Berlin, fits in with Kennedy's plan to try to seize the diplomatic initiative from the Russians while at the same time bolstering western military might to provide a stronger bargaining position.

The western allies have yet to formulate specific new diplomatic proposals on the Berlin and German issues. But Secretary of State Dean Rusk will begin work on this when he meets next weekend in Paris with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany.

The ministers also will seek to coordinate allied military measures to mesh with the steps Kennedy announced last Tuesday and Wednesday to strengthen America's conventional military forces and place them in a higher state of combat readiness.

Rusk and the other foreign ministers also will discuss the possibility of increasing U. S. military strength in Europe, which now amounts to five divisions. In addition the confrees must wrestle with economic problems involved in beefing up the Western defense alliance.

Kennedy and Rusk believe the West has time, since it is considered highly unlikely that Khrushchev will want to force the issue to the point of conflict until after the October Communist Party Congress in Moscow — if then.

Among the factors likely to delay any early formal Western diplicmatic initiative are:

1. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's reluctance to commit himself to any substantial military buildup or more flexible diplomatic approach until after the September elections in Germany.

2. Uncertainty as to just how much increased military cooperation can be expected from France in the light of Gen. Charles de Gualle's new troubles in Tunisia and the breakdown in his talks with the Algerian rebels.

3. Britain's new "austerity" program already has led her to ask for a reduction in her financial contribution to NATO.

4. The time it will take before Kennedy's proposed military increases to actually become apparent enough to convince Khrushchev the West means business.

For the past 15 years, Mrs. Anderson resided at 821 Fifth Avenue. Aside from many neices and nephews, her only surviving sister is Criscentia Fuller of 1010 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael. Thurber, Shaw Share Spotlight

James Thurber and George Bernard Shaw productions are sharing the spotlight during the current offerings of the Festival Theater at 2 Kensington Road, San Anselmo.

Being performed are "The 13 Clocks," musical comedy based on a Thurber fable, and "In the Beginning," the first part of Shaw's "Back to Methuselah."

"The 13 Clocks" deals with a "once upon a time" world in which the cruel Duke of Coffin (played by Kenneth McClelland) claims he murdered time. Princes who come to the kingdom to claim the hand of his daughter are sent on impossible journies to places that never were to bring back things that never existed.

Performances are at 8:30 p.m. four nights a week, Wednesday through Saturday. Family nights are featured on Wednesday and Thursday at reduced prices. Reservations may be made by calling Festival Theater on performance days between 2 and 8 p.m.

Dark Unhappy With Hurlers; May Reorder 'No Bullpen'

DARK OBJECTS — Manager Alvin Dark of Giants voices his objections to the ejection of infielder Jimmy Davenport by plate umpire Mel Steiner in first game of last night's double-header. Dark got nowhere as Steiner ordered Davenport to the locker room. (AP Wirephoto)

Split Irks Boss; Giants, Phils Go Again Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants, threatened with another "no bullpen" declaration, take a third shot at the Philadelphia Phillies tonight.

The Giants split a doubleheader with the pesky cellar dwellers yesterday, winning the opener, 8-5, and losing the nightcap, 4-3, on Bobby Malkmus' seventh-inning homer.

But Manager Alvin Dark, indicating his unhappiness with the club's performance, said he might "order" his starters to go the distance tonight with no bullpen aid. This strategy paid off against the Pirates Thursday, when Dark had his pitchers completely vacate the Giant bullpen.

The San Francisco pilot was expected to name either Sam Jones (7-5) or Mike McCormick (8-9) to face the Phils' Don Ferrarese (2-6) in an effort to gain ground on league-leading Cincinnati. The third-place Giants trail the Reds by nine games.

Malkmus' blow in the nightcap broke a 3-3 tie acquired by the Giants when Orlando Cepeda blasted his 28th homer with one aboard in the sixth. San Francisco had scored its first run that inning on a walk to Harvey Kuenn, a single by Matty Alou and Willie Mays' sacrifice fly.

LEMAY LOSES

Dick LeMay (2-4), who served up the gopher ball to Malkmus, took the loss. The rookie relieved starter Billy Loes in the fifth, and gave way to Stu Miller in the eighth. John Buzhardt (3-10) notched his first victory since June 8.

Philadelphia broke into the scoring column in the second when Darrel Johnson doubled home two runs. Ruben Amaro doubled across another tally in the fourth.

In the opener, Wes Covington put the Phils ahead with a three-run homer in the first inning off starter Bob Bolin. The smash was Covington's first round tripper for Philadelphia. And he followed with another circuit clout in the third.

MAHAFFEY SHELLED

But t was San Francsco's turn to cut loose in the seventh.

Philadelphia starter Art Mahaffey took a 5-3 lead into the frame, only to lose it when the Giants rallied for five runs.

A double by Joe Amalftano, a single by Alou, and a two-run double by Mays sent Mahaffey to the showers. Jack Baldschun came on and was victimized by an error, a single by Ed Bailey, a wild throw to the plate, a throw to the wrong base and a wild pitch.

Dom Zanni, the third San Francisco hurler, claimed the win, his first against no losses. Mahaffey now has a 7-14 mark.

FAIRFAX LITTLE LEAGUE CHAMPS

Luck Of Elements Switches To Palmer's Favor In PGA

CHICAGO (AP)—Weather permitting, the PGA championship tries again to get through its second round today but under a new rain-dictated format that figures to favor golf's golden boy, Arnold Palmer.

The luck of the elements was first against, then with Palmer yesterday, when a cloudburst halted the second round. Before then it looked as if lanky Art Wall had shaken off all but two or three contenders after recording a sizzling 36-hole total of 137. Par is 35-35-70 at the 6,722-yard Olympia Fields Country Club.

Wall, the first-round leader with a 67, had already posted a second-round 70 when the skies broke loose and forced a suspension of play at 1:20 p.m. Finally, at 2:45 when the torrents of rain had turned Olympia Fields into a series of puddles, PGA officials decided to cancel play for the day. All second-round scores were washed away — cancelling, in addition to Wall's 70, a fine 68 by young Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La., and a 71 by a former champion, Doug Ford of Yonkers, N.Y.

NO ONE CLOSE

Those rounds had left Wall at 137, Pott at 139 and Ford at 140. No one else was close. The other players of the field of 166 were fortunate enough to get in before the heavy rains developed.

The luck for Palmer, who had said earlier, "I'd be lucky to shoot a 75 if play resumed," began when the round was washed away. Palmer, scheduled to tee off at 1:55 with Gary Player and Don January, would have had to whack away under miserable conditions.

Without question, it would have taken a Herculean round for any of the first day trailers —including Palmer, who had a first round 73 — to stay anywhere near the pace set by Wall.

The next break came when PGA President Lou Strong announced that instead of setting the tournament back a day, the final 36 holes would be played on Sunday. The double-round finish, first for the PGA since it was shifted from match play to a 72-hole medal play event in 1958, definitely favors the younger, stronger golfers like Palmer.

NEW SETUP

Under the new setup dictated by the postponement, the field was to be cut to the low 60 scorers and ties after the second round. The normal PGA format is four daily rounds of 18 holes each, Thursday through Sunday, with the field cut to the low 90 and ties after two rounds and the low 60 and ties after three.

So Wall, who shrugged off the loss of a distinct advantage with a terse, "Well, that's too bad, but that's how it goes sometimes," goes off again today with a one-stroke lead over defending champion Jay Hebert and Ernie Vossler, who opened Thursday with 68s. Two strokes behind are Jerry Barber, Ford and Bill Heinlein, and three back are Don Fairfield, Doug Sanders, Buster Cupit, Jack Fleck, Bob Rosburg, Shelley Mayfield and Paul Harney.

JUDGE KILLS DEAL

Package TV Ban Called 'Disaster' For Pro Grid

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the National Football League cannot have a contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System. But a league spokesman says road games will be televised this fall as before.

Judge Allan K. Grim held yesterday to his 1953 ruling that the NFL's $9.3-million two-year contract with CBS violates federal antitrust laws.

The ruling followed two days of testimony in which NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said that unless the package deal was approved, half of the league's 14 teams would be without TV in 1962 —"an economic disaster for the league."

NFL clubs will have to negotiate individually for TV contracts unless Grim's denial is upset by a higher court.

Rozelle declined to comment until he has a chance to study the decision.

Another NFL spokesman said league games would be televised the same way they were last season. Ten games were on CBS, two on the National Broadcasting Co. network, and one on an independent sports network last season. The new Minnesota entry is expected to be on CBS.

The spokesman added that Grim's denial of the NFL appeal to reconsider his previous decision was based on evidence eight years old, and not on current issues. The previous decision banned package-contract single-circuit TV on grounds that it eliminated competition among the teams and controlled prices.

The judge's ruling could effect the sports contracts of the National Basketball Assn., the American Football League and the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.

Grim also rejected a second NFL appeal to wait until Dec. 31 to have a full hearing on whether his earlier decision should be modified.

Before the ruling, William MacPhail, CBS vice president in charge of sports, testified that his network would be forced to drop all but three teams in 1962 unless the package deal were approved.

Joe Donoghue, executive vice president of the NFL champion Philadelphia Eagles, said that unless CBS renewed its option with the Eagles in 1962, "We're dead, out of business."

He added that without package TV, "All sports as we know them will be out of business within two years."

Tex Schramm, general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, said packaged TV "is the sole difference between profit and loss."

TIBURON QUITS STATE TOURNEY

Tiburon Pelicans today withdrew from the California Semi-Professional Baseball Tournament, Manager Eddie Vigno announced.

Tiburon was scheduled to open play tomorrow, but has withdrawn because the tournament was shifted from San Rafael's Albert Park to an East Bay location.

When Tournament Commissioner S. L. "Brick" Swegle earlier this week announced that the tourney's championship playoff series next month had been shifted from San Rafael to Eureka, the San Rafael Recreation Commission reacted by prohibiting use of Albert Park for remaining tournament games.

Vigno explained he withdrew his club "as a matter of principle because it wouldn't be right for a Marin County team participating in the tournament now in view of these developments."

Tiburon will play a game at its home park tomorrow against Ellis Brooks Chevrolet starting at 2:30 p.m.

Welter Champion In TV Go Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—World Welterweight champion Emile Griffith of New York hopes to use Yama Bahama as a stepping stone toward a shot at the middle-weight crown when they tangle in a non-title nationally televised (ABC, 7 p.m., PDT) 10-rounder topping a Madison Square Garden boxing show tonight.

Bahama is a legitimate middleweight, although he will have to come in at 155 or less tonight under the terms agreed upon. Griffith, who was down to 145 a couple of days ago, hopes to come in around 148.

NAVE BOYS STAR AS . . .

Marin Whips Sonoma In Kneeball Contest

By JIM GILMARTIN

The Brothers Nave of San Rafael — who got their early training as altar boys — led the Marin County All-Stars to a 12-0 victory over Sonoma All-Stars last night at Petaluma in the third annual "Kneeball Bowl."

Striking early with a touchdown in each of the first and second periods, the Marin team then concentrated on defense to stave off a sensational passing attack by the Sonomans in the second half.

Kneeballers play football on their knees and on a 50-yard field with several other variations of grid rules.

Last night's game, shifted from Marin to Petaluma, was played for the benefit of Pop Warner teams in Marin and Sonoma counties, laid a financial egg in the egg basket of the world. They stayed away by the thousands, and that's not a yoke, son. A crowd estimated at approximately 98 persons sat in on the fray and the gate receipts hardly are enough to buy enough air for Pop Warner teams' footballs.

MARIN SCORES

Neverthless, the participants had a ball and the Marin team, after scoreless ties in the first two annual games, finally broke the scoring drought in the first quarter when Billy Nave scampered around right end behind a key block by Jim Baxter for the first six points. It capped a 20-yard drive by Marin that featured short gainers by Rich Nave and a great catch of an 8-yard pass by Baxter.

In the second quarter the third Nave in the lineup, Bob, scored the final touchdown of the evening on a five-yard burst around left end.

Sonoma, after the halftime break, unleashed its vaunted aerial attack with veterans Ken Corsiglia and Gordon Tovani hooking up on no less than 10 completions, most of them in sensational fashion.

However, Marin managed to thwart each drive short of paydirt.

There were some surprise performances by newcomers to the Marin team, particularly the downfield blocking of Jim McKee, the pass snagging of big John Corzier, the line smashing of former USC fullback Jim Decker and the stellar line play of Gerry Eckman, Dave Crandall and George Curry.

All the San Francisco radio and TV personalities advertised on the Sonoma lineup failed to show up for the game.

Brown Won't Postpone Deer Opener

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Brown announced today he will not delay the scheduled Aug. 5 opening of deer season because of fire hazards.

He had ben asked by anxious land owners to deny access to dry areas by hunters and fishermen.

But Brown said "the record shows that results of such action would probably have relatively little effect in cutting the fire hazard."

He said he based his decision on recommendations from State Forester Francis Raymond and Director Walter T. Shannon of the Fsh and Game Department.

Brown said he is "counting, also, on the good judgmen of California's hunters and fishermen, who must be constantly alert to the dangers of fire.

"Three critically dry years have created extremely dangerous fire conditions throughout most of the state.

"Once again, I urge all citizens — sportsmen, hikers and others who will be enjoying California's great outdoors this summer and autumn—to guard against fire."

S. F. Lad Catches 17-Pound Striper

A 17-year-old San Francisco youth, vacationing in Woodacre for the summer, accepted an invitation to go bass fishing yesterday at the Marin Rod and Gun Club pier at Point San Quentin.

After stopping off to purchase his first angling license, Dean Muller and his hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Peacock of Woodacre, then went to the pier where Dean promptly hit the jackpot, reeling in a 17-pound striped bass.

Dean is the son of Eddie Muller, boxing writer for the San Francisco Examiner. Dad has a new name for Dean — "Champ."

49ER VETERANS REPORT; LYLES PASSES EXAM

Today the San Francisco 49ers become a more or less complete pro football family as 16 veterans report into camp at Moraga, bringing the total on hand to 45.

Coach Red Hickey was relieved to learn late yesterday that Lennie Lyles, the team's top kickoff return specialist, had an okay on his heart and would rejoin the squad.

Hickey said that Ray Norton, the former San Jose State "world's fastest human," ran well from the left half slot during yesterday's short scrimmage.

Already it looks like a bumper year for the 49er receiver corps and Monte Stickles, ex-Notre Dame great, is a case in point. Hickey said he had never seen Stickles, down to about 227 pounds from 245 plus, in such good shape.

"He's been snaring the ball with plenty of zip," Hickey said.

Dave Baker, Oklahoma star turned pro defensive secondary luminary, is due into camp tomorrow night.

Marin Gains Semis In Colt Tourney

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

ATWATER — John Hammond's perfect squeeze bunt scored Jack Martin with the winning run in the sixth inning last night as the Marin County All-Stars came from behind to nip North Sacramento 7-6 and gain the semi-finals of the Sector Colt Baseball Tournament.

Marin faces the colorful and speedy Hawaii entry at 8 o'clock tonight with the winner to meet undefeated defending world champion San Jose at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. San Jose can win the title by winning tomorrow, but a loss would force a second Sunday game at 8 p.m.

Marin went into the bottom of the sixth inning faced with a 5-6 deficit last night but pulled it out of the fire with a two-run rally that started with a double by Rick Basco. Martin followed him and was hit by a pitched ball. In a daring double steal Basco drew a throwing error streaking into third and went all the way home with the tying run while Martin made it to third. Then Hammond laid down the winning squeeze bunt.

Fred Mack, the third Marin pitcher, was credited with the win as he pitched the final one and one-third inning without allowing a base runner. Starting pitcher Tom O'Neill gave up two hits, walked three and gave up four runs partly through the fault of three errors behind him. Dave Perlis took over in the fourth and gave up two runs on two hits and four walks, plus an error and a passed ball before Mack relieved him in the sixth.

TELEGIN STARS

Mike Telegin was Marin's most productive hitter with three runs batted in on a double and single. Basco also had a double and single while Hammond and Miller each contributed two singles to Marin's nine-hit attack.

Sacramento got two runs in the first and third innings and one each in the fifth and sixth while Marin scored twice in the first, once in each of the second, fourth and fifth before the two big ones in the sixth.

Finals Tomorrow In S.A. Tourney

San Anselmo will have representatives in finals of three of the four divisions tomorrow as the annual San Anselmo Junior Baseball Tournament comes to a close.

The Hub City's Minor Little League team will play St. Helena for the title at 1 p.m.; the S. A. Major Little Leaguers also will take on St. Helena at 4:15 p.m. and S. A.'s Senior Leaguers will battle the New Pisa Dodgers of San Francisco at 5:15, all games at Memorial Park.

The other championship tilt for Junior League at 2 p.m. will match San Rafael against the winner of today's Terra Linda-Presidio game.

In last night's action the San Anselmo Major Leaguers blanked Gallinas Valley 5-0 behind the pitching of Ron Blackford, with the help of a home run by John Poletta, and the New Pisa Dodgers nipped San Rafael in Senior League 8-7. Dan Summerville for the Dodgers and Jerry Daniele of San Rafael each hit a homer.

WINNER PAYS $21.20

DEL MAR (AP) — Perfect Hostess ($21.20) won the headliner at Del Mar by half a length yesterday.

Stockton Boy Snares Title

With his share of the national doubles championship already in his hip pocket, 10-year-old Dickie Stockton of San Rafael went out after the singles championship today in the National Boys Tennis Tournament at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Stockton teamed with Richard Borhrnstadt of Redlands, Calif. yesterday to win the 11 and under doubles crown over Bill Colson of Coral Gables Fla. and Randy Verdieck of Redlands by a 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 count.

In today's singles finals Dickie was to battle Randy Verdieck again for the singles championship. Stockton, the California champion for 11 and under, was the favorite.

Olson To Launch Comeback Aug. 14

OAKLAND, (UPI)—Carl (Bobo) Olson, former middle-weight champion of the world, will meet Roque Maravilla in a 10-round match at Oakland Auditorium Aug. 14.

The bout will be Olson's first since his reinstatement last month by California Athletic Commission. Matchmaker Don Chargin announced plans for the fight yesterday.

BETTER THAN WINTER

Summer Attendance Hiked By Tourists

Rev. John G. Connery is the priest to two Marin Catholic congregations that uniquely have their largest attendance in the summer.

Father Connery pastors St. Cecilia's Parish in Lagunitas and Our Lady of Loretto Mission in Nicasio, both of which have tourists that hike Sunday attendance considerably during the summer.

Vacationers who attend 11 a.m. Mass on Sundays at the mission will enter a small, white, wooden church, styled after Colonial New England parishes. The mission, once called St. Mary's, was built in 1867 to serve the Indians in the Nicasio Valley. In 1915 its name was changed and it became a mission of Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato.

In the sanctuary of the mission is a tapestry needled by the late Catherine McIsaac, the wife of a rancher, who with other Catholic pioneers settled the valley. The work of art is a "Picture of the Holy Face (Jesus)," and was completed by Mrs. McIsaac a 100 years ago this year, said Father Connery.

The mission's members are some 25 families of mostly dairy ranchers and producers whose forefathers were Swiss Italians and Irish Americans. Father Connery himself is a native of Ireland, and has served both congregations for nearly a decade.

About 25 tourists come each Sunday to Mass during the summer in addition to the regular members. The mission will seat 150 persons. The number of tourists attending the Lagunitas church, most of whom are campers from Samuel Taylor State Park, averages 130. Some 75 families are regular members.

St. Cecilia's was a mission when it was built in 1912. In 1935 it was rebuilt and became a parish. Father Connery has his living quarters next to the parish, holds a 9:30 a.m. Mass at St. Ceceilia's, then packs up and heads for Nicasio for an 11 a.m. mass. The mission was served in the early days by a priest who rode on horseback from Novato and then camped Sunday nights in the sanctuary.

Both jobs keep Father Connery running, but "I can handle it except during Christmas and Easter." The Archdiocese of San Francisco sends him some help during those religious holiday seasons.

Father Connery was born in Limericky County. He graduated from St. Patrick's Seminary in Thurles, Ireland, and came to the Bay Area as a young priest in 1933. He had served several Northern California parishes before being assigned to Marin.

Three Marin Churches Plan Vacation Bible Schools

Three Marin County churches announced their vacation Bible school schedules this week.

The Faith Lutheran Church in Terra Linda will start its school Monday and continue it through August 11. It will be held at 9:30 a.m. daily for pupils 3 to 12 years.

Pastor Bliss W. Bellinger said the school is "intended to be a planned Christian summer instructional program" the contents of which will be "experience and practice in group worship; class instruction in Christian faith; religious handcrafts and recreation and refreshments."

Pastor Bellinger, who will direct the school, may be contacted at the church for further information.

The San Rafael Methodist Church will conduct its daily vacation Bible School Aug. 7 to 18 with the theme "Working and Living as Christians." Classes will be at 9 a.m.

Children in kindergarten through the sixth grade may enroll announced Mrs. Bernie Heare, director. Enrollment will be held at the church tomorrow, she said. The school's staff will include 20 teachers and assistants. Among its leaders, in addition to Mrs. Heare, will be Mrs. Frayne Fennie, chairman of the Commission on Education, and Mrs. Earle Koeble, church school superintendent.

Marin Lutheran Church in Corte Madera will start a two-week vacation Bible school Aug. 14 to 25.

The session, held daily from 9 a.m. to noon, will have as a study theme "God's Holy Law." Included in the curriculum will be the 10 commandments, related Bible stories, handcraft, and recreation. The school will be open to kindergarten through eighth graders, announced Miss Amanda Tufte, director.

She said there will be 16 teachers and associates on the staff. Registration in advance may be made at the church office Tuesdays through Saturdays, 9 to noon.

Missionary To Be Guest

Rev. Robert Johnson, missionary, will be speaking at the 9:45 and 11 a.m. services at the Calvary Baptist Church in Larkspur tomorrow in place of pastor, Rev. Michael Barkowska, who is on vacation.

Rev. Johnson is a missionary under the Fellowship of Baptist Home Missions. He has also organized several new churches for the General Assn. of Regular Baptist Churches in Northern California.

Youth Council Plans Church Family Night

The Youth Council of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael will sponsor a special "youth family night" at the church's Canoles Hall tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Committee chairman and council member David Hellman announced that the guest speaker for the evening will be Rev. Larry Byers, a Presbyterian missionary. Rev. Byers will show slides and speak of his work in Mexico from where he has recently returned to the Bay Area, said Hellman.

Child Organist

PATERSON, N.J. (AP)—"And a child shall lead them" is a phrase that 12-year-old Betty Ann Hiemstra takes literally when she leads the choir at the Christ Evangelical United Brethren Church.

FORMER MARIN PASTOR WILL BE SPEAKER

Dr. John Jefferson Canoles, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael for 31 years before his semi-retirement, will be speaking for the next four Sundays at the Portal Hurst Presbyterian Church in San Francisco.

Dr. Jefferson Canoles has been assistant pastor in San Francisco since his retirement in 1959. He will conduct the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services while the pastor is on vacation. Tomorrow's sermon by Dr. Canoles will be "Meeting Life's Compulsions."

Clerical Criss-Cross

COPENHAGEN (AP)—A former Roman Catholic priest, Thorbjorn Moller, has applied to the Church of Denmark (Lutheran) to enter its ministry—reportedly the first such case in recent times. However, two former Lutheran clergymen in Denmark recently became Roman Catholic priests.

Persecution

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — True believers in Christ have always been persecuted, Dr. Gunnar Westin, Swedish church historian, told a gathering here. "Persecution started early and it is clear that many times it has been a blessing."

Adventure Group At Methodist Camp Grounds

Five members of the Christian Adventure Group of the San Rafael Methodist Church are spending this week at the organization's Christian Adventure Camp at Monte Toyon, Aptos, Santa Cruz County.

The San Rafael group—Genetha Day, Lesile Retallick, Theresa McGinnis, Janet Hoy, Gary Bartholomew, counselor Bernie Heare—were with some 100 junior high school students at the camp. The San Raafel Adventure group will hear report on the trip Monday at 5:45 p.m. meeting at the Church.

Negro Spirituals Are Akin To Jewish Songs

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP) — "The Negro spiritual's melody is closely akin to, and in some cases takes on definite characteristics of, the traditional Jewish melodies," says William Farley Smith.

That Smith should have an interest in both types of music is understanable. He is a Negro Baptist who serves as organist for Congregation B'nai Yeshurun here.

Smith recently made his debut as a composer of Hebrew liturgical music at Paterson's Barnett Memorial Temple by playing his composition, "America and Israel," during a Sabbath service.

Smith never learned the Hebrew language, but explained:

"By playing the services week after week, I became accustomed to the tone of Hebrew and its varying pronounciations. I was consequently able to set the prosody of the transliterated language to music."

'Love' Is Theme

"Love" will be the theme for worship in Christian Science Church in Marin County tomorrow. The biblical passage will be from the book of Zephaniah: "Thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; He will save, He will rejoice over them with joy; He will rest His love, He will joy over thee with singing."

Opening lead — ♣ Q

West opened the queen of clubs, and declarer won in dummy with the ace. Since no ruffs were needed in dummy's only short suit, declarer led the jack of trumps from dummy for a finesse.

West casually played a low trump, and declarer repeated the finesse. This time West took the king of trumps since he could return a trump and sweep the board clean.

When South finally got around to playing the diamonds, he had to lose three tricks in the suit. Down two at a cold contract!

SHOULD LEAD HEARTS: Declarer should lead the king of hearts from dummy at the second trick. East wins and returns a trump.

South steps up with the ace of trumps to save as many trumps in dummy as possible. Declarer cashes the queen and jack of hearts, discarding diamonds from dummy. This creates a diamond shortage in dummy to take the place of the original heart shortage.

Now South is ready for a cross-ruff. He cashes the ace of diamonds, ruffs a diamond in dummy, ruffs a club in his hand and ruffs another diamond in dummy.

The two ruffs in dummy give declarer his ninth and tenth tricks. He loses one heart, one diamond and one trump, making his game contract.

DAILY QUESTION: Dealer, at your left, bids one club, and your partner doubles. The next hold:

Answer: Double. The bid is probably psychic, and your double will expose it. If the opponents run out of clubs, as you expect, you will bid the hearts yourself.

Rice Brings Rise In City Communes

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China is using its system of urban communes, developed extensively and with little publicity in the last year and a half, to control consumption of scarce grain for its hungry millions.

An estimated 56 million city dwellers in China are believed to be eating, sleeping, working and raising children in more than 1,000 urban communes.

Noting recent food shortages which have compelled Peiping to purchase record amounts of grain from abroad, a book just published here concludes, "perhaps the most important reason" for large-scale development of urban communes is their role in consumption control.

EVIDENCE

"There is strong evidence to suggest that the main reasons for the sudden blossoming of urban communes in 1960 lay in their twin functions of controlling grain supplies and making use of surplus labor," the author wrote.

The book, "China's Urban Communes" by Henry J. Lethbridge, lecturer in sociology at the University of Honk Kong, said the mess halls, common feature of both city communes and the much more publicized rural communes, is rapidly becoming the determining factor in how much a Chinese family gets to eat.

OPPOSITION

Lethbridge, in his well documented book, noted that public opposition to the idea of mess hall eating can still be considered the general rule, although party cadres are doing their utmost to gain acceptance for the system among city dwellers.

The book traced the development of urban communes from the first pilot groupings or by habitants by city blocks or by factories in 1958 through the years in which the problem of food supply has come to dominate Peiping's domestic thinking.

Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai is quoted as telling the National Peoples Congress in 1959 "some dining rooms failed to manage their grain . . . so that a little too much was consumed . . . this defect has now been remedied."

SEVERAL FACTORS

The book added: "Behind China's continuing food problems are a number of factors: Questionable policies of basic priority for the nation's economic development; improved management on various agricultural levels as acknowledged from time to time by communist organs; peasant dissatisfaction with the rural communes, and successsion of national calamities which, while bad enough, do not appear to have been of the magnitude claimed in official Chinese statements seeking to explain the failures on the farm front."

Describing the structure of urban communes, the author stated that mess halls, like the communes themselves, vary greatly in size.

"As the number of mess halls in the cities increased necessarily the number of retail food shops diminshes and this makes it all the more difficult for ration card holders wishing to feed at home to do so, because of inevitable delays and queuing at the diminshing number of food shops."

MORMON SPECTACLE PLANNED

Pages Jay Burnett (left) and John Ker, both of Schenectady, kneel before King Benjamin, portrayed by Edgar Holmes of Liberty, Utah, during rehearsal of the annual Mormon pageant "America's Witness for Christ," on Hill Cumorah near Palmyra, N. Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormon Church, reported that he found golden tablets in 1823 on the hill, containing written history of a civilization that had flourished on earth. (AP Wirephoto)

Psychiatrist Confesses He Doesn't Know

NEW YORK (UPI)—A psychiatrist confessed publicly to his scientific brethren (and to medical doctors generally) that when some of his emotionally disturbed patients get better he hasn't the slightest idea of why they do.

"When a patient does not get better it is easy enough for me to assume that my skill as a psychiatrist is wanting," said Dr. Ainslie Meares. "But what of the patient who genuinely recovers from his nervous or psychosomatic illness after two or three visits, when he has not been given any direct suggestions of improvement, and he has no real insight into the mechanisms which produced his illness?"

These persons have filled Meares with wonderment—and perplexity.

TWO CLASSES

He used to believe, on the basis of his scientific training and experience, that scientific techniques for helping the emotionally ill "fell into two great classes — those which helped the patient by increasing repression and those which helped him by increasing his insight.

"Thus reassurance, simple suggestion, supportive therapy, relationship therapy, religious therapy and hypnotic suggestion all seemed to work towards increasing repression. Explanation, analytical psychotherapy and hypnoanalysis all seemed to help the patient by giving him greater insight.

"This classification is neat, and would appear logical enough. But is it really valid? I doubt it."

DOUBTS

He doubted it because in looking back on patients whom he had made better he found no "satisfactory reason" for their improvements. These included patients who had received just about no treatment to increase their repressions and left the psychiatrist as devoid of insight as when they went to him.

"I am not trying to say that all we have gained is no good," Meares continued. "Rather am I trying to say that surely there must be another way of looking at things. I feel that there is some basic mechanism which, so far, eludes us. Is there some other factor in psychotherapy which is beyond our present theoretical constructs, and which operates unbeknown to the therapist?"

RESPONSES

He believed this factor does operate but he was not able to describe it beyond suggesting it somehow came into being from the unconscious feelings of the patient for the doctor—and of the doctor for the patient. These feelings could result in an "intuitive ability to make appropriate emotional responses" which cure the patient.

Meares is a theoretician and philosopher with a growing reputation in the English language world of psychologic-psychiatric science. He practices in Melbourne, Australia, and made his public confession in the technical journal, "The Lancet."

Jobless Benefits For Farm Workers

About 240 Marin employers of agricultural labor will be affected by a 1961 amendment to the California Unemployment Insurance Code beginning Oct. 1, it was announced today by Charles J. Brady, auditor of the San Rafael office of the State Department of Employment.

Under the amendment, farm workers for the first time are entitled to disability benefits. Similar benefits have been extended to workers in business and industry since 1946.

Brady advised farm employers who have not received their forms by Sept. 1 to notify him at his office, 807 E Street, San Rafael.

First Science Encyclopedia For Grammer School Due

CHICAGO (UPI)—The first science encyclopedia ever written especially for elementary school use is being prepared for publication this fall.

A team of about 60 educators and scientists is writing and compiling the 19-volume work under sponsorship of the National College of Education, Evanston, Ill.

The college, oldest private teachcers institution in the country, undertook the project to bolster science teaching at the elementary school level.

While designed for easy use by third to eighth grade pupils, the encyclopedia will be detailed enough to serve as a reference work for high school students.

It also is intended to teach teachers more about science, particularly the physical sciences.

Director of the team producing the encyclopedia is Dr. W. Ray Rucker, dean of the National College.

Rucker said the encyclopedia was needed primarily to foster a "discovery" or research approach to science at the elementary school level.

"The big emphasis needs to be on teaching a discovery approach to science that unleashes the fresh imaginations of the younger generation," he said. He maintained this could not be accomplished with textbooks alone.

Dr. Helen Challand, chairman of science and mathematics at the college and associate editor of the encyclopedia, explained its emphasis on the physical sciences.

"Our elementary schools up to now have been understandably involved in nature study, shying away from the physical sciences," she said. "But with all the current push on the aerospace and nuclear sciences, teachers are forced to go to the physical sciences more and, regrettably, this is one of their weaknesses."

The 19-volume work will include some 2,600 entries, about one million words and 3,000 illustrations in full color. Its factual starting point in some cases will be 10 to 15 years ahead of most current textbooks, editors estimate.

Dr. Krafft A. Ehricke, rocket expert, is preparing the sections on astronautics and space. An Argonne National Laboratory scientist is contributing material on nuclear science and radiation.

A Family With Real Teamwork

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—Bricklayer Mike Hergatt married a second baseman and their teamwork is continuing in a thriving business.

Hergatt managed a girls' softball team a few years ago, and eventually married the girl who played second base and was team seamstress. When the couple moved to Norwalk from Mansfield, Ohio, he continued as a bricklayer and she opened a lettering and embroidery service.

The embroidery business prospered, requiring a 2,100-square-foot addition, which Hergatt now is engaged in erecting. The couple has two married children.

Hitler Collection Valued At $50,000

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Sivi has a collection of items once owned by or associated with Adolph Hitler, which he says has been valued at $50,000 by Army officials.

The collection includes: a .22 caliber pistol that belonged to the Nazi leader; a hand towel with the monograms "A.H."; a toy stuffed dog given Hitler by his niece; many swords, armbands, flags and banners, and several letters and cards signed by Hitler.

Makes Living On Roller Coasters

CLEVELAND (AP) — For 37 years, Fred Greenway has been riding roller coasters for a living.

He's with the maintenance department at Euclid Beach Park. Of the rides he makes, Greenway says:

"Nothing to it after you've been doing it for awhile. Most of the time I'm listening for unusual sounds or noises that might indicate more repair or maintenance work."

Billion Spent For Health In America

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly $1 billion a year is being spent in this country on construction of hospitals, nursing homes and other health facilities, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

It said 58 per cent of these funds came from private sources, 25 per cent from state and local governments, and the remaining 17 per cent from the federal government.

'Why'd He Do That?'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Behind a swollen face, a motorist told police this story: He stopped behind another car at a traffic light at night. The first driver got out of his auto and approached the second, asking him if he wanted to buy a car. The surprised motorist replied that he did not. With that, the first motorist punched him in the nose and drove off without an explanation.

Self-Invited Guest At 1911 Wedding

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Guides at the Ohio Capitol receive some unusual requests, but one of the most out-of-the-ordinary was in 1911. A young couple, accompanied by families and friends, asked permission to be married in the central rotunda.

Officials checked the Ohio Constitution and other codes and, finding nothing prohibiting such a ceremony, permitted the wedding to take place.

As the wedding began, a 50-year-old newspaper account relates, "the word spread like wildfire and (state) offices were emptied, especially of young ladies of eligible age."

Oil Fires Bring Call: 'Get Red!'

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—From Sumatra to Santa Fe, N. M., when an oil or gas well burns out of control, the standing order is, "Get Red here!"

And Red Adair will get there.

Stocky, 46-year-old Adair is world-famed for his fire fighting skills. And he did not come by his reputation easily. The fact that he has had an absolute monopoly in his business for over a decade is testimony to his skill and the danger of his job.

Naturally, Adair's favorite color is red. And when roughnecks sweating out a roaring well fire see the fire fighter's famous red overalls, it's likely to be their favorite color too.

Most of his work takes more skill than daring. He says he doesn't often have to wear the Man-from-Mars asbestos suite—or carry a charge of nitro or TNT into the center of a burning well.

Uusually, cotton work gloves and careful maneuvering of heavy machinery is the operating procedure. But, when it does take a hazardous approach to get the fire out, Adair shows why his name and Houston, Tex., phone number are likely to be on the desk of oil producers around the world.

Red says, "it's only a calculated risk."

But his calculations are dangerous enough to let him name his own fee. And the well owners and insurance companies figure his price is well worth the job.

Adair's fees vary. "If they've got to ask me what I charge, they can't afford me," he says.

Research might seem foreign to firefighting, but Red says he continues to study his profession.

"No two fires are alike in every way," he says. "Each has characteristics of its own. As a result, we take pictures of the fires and what we do. We take many notes on the procedures we used and the conditions we met."

When he reports to the scene of a well blaze, Adair usually surveys the situation before taking any action. First, debris and materials must be cleared from the area. This is usually done with cranes and bulldozers.

Then water must be brought to the scene. Sometimes this itself is difficult, At a fire in the west Texas desert, Adair had to transport in 75,000 barrels of water at a dollar a barrel. That fire took 29 days to extinguish.

Farmers Take Step To Keep Hogs Cool

COLUMBUS, Ohio — An increasing number of farmers are taking steps to keep their hogs cool in the summer, the Ohio State University extension service says.

By keeping hogs relatively confined, farm specialists say, they gain weight more efficiently and under more sanitary conditions. But they also can't cool off under a tree or in a mudhole.

So, the university's researchers say, farmers are using overhead pipes with fog spray nozzles, shades over feed-watering-rest areas, ventilation systems, insulation and paved areas to protect hogs in hot weather.

That Sunshine Was Very Liquid

GRAND JUNCTION, Iowa (AP)—Glen Umbaugh of Grand Junction tells of the man who returned from his vacation complaining that the weather had been rainy.

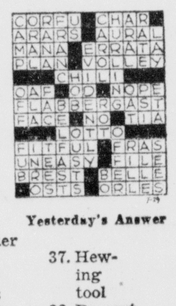

"It couldn't have been so bad," said a friend. "You're sunburned."

"Sunburned nothing," the man replied. "That's rust."

Japanese Garden

Top Middle Ridge Location

This delightful 2 level home is in the choicest of locations. Trees, yet lots of sun. Walk to school and shopping. 3 bedrooms, separate dining room, privacy on ½ acre with beautiful terraces. A charmer for the whole family. $28,950.

Relaxing Enjoyment

A true charmer that is cleaner than new and beautifully landscaped to boot. The trees have grown to a nice size and the deep green lawn is kept that way by the sprinkling system. Sparkling hardwood parquet floors, two fully tiled baths, and formica counter tops make for a minimum of housework. Over the fireplace mantel you can place your cherished heirlooms with pride, and entertain with pleasure on the brick patio. You'll agree that you can leave your paint brush and mop behind.

Everybody Loses In School Battle With Sunny Hills

The top brass of Sunny Hills and the top brass of San Anselmo school district appear to be locked in mortal combat.

Sunny Hills, whose future has been clouded with the shadow of doubt for several years, was facing a crisis of sorts even before the school district announced its intention to take a select portion of Sunny Hills property.

The school district has had trouble enough in the past getting voter approval in bond and tax elections, it cannot afford to lose any friends in the community. At the same time, enrollments appear headed for sharp growth and additional facilities must be provided. The Sunny Hills property looks like it may be the only answer.

So we have, in a sense, an irresistible force colliding with an immovable object.

As we say, the situation looks like mortal combat.

It reminds us in a way of modern war: Everybody loses, nobody wins.

What's the solution?

It seems clear to us that there is only one: there must be mutually amicable negotiated settlement.

Sunny Hills must have an amicable settlement in order to survive so it can continue to provide its valuable service to troubled youth.

The school district must have an amicable settlement if the wounds of battle are not to be detrimentally felt every time a finance measure goes to the polls for years to come.

Failure of an amicable settlement means, in the end, giving less than the best the community owes to its school-age youth—both in public schools and at Sunny Hills.

How do you achieve an amicable settlement when an irresistible force is in collision with an immovable object?

Obviously the force must cease to be irresistible and the object must cease to be immovable.

In other words, both sides have got to give some.

It could be that Sunny Hills must bow to the inevitable and give up a portion of its property for a public school.

It could be that the school district will have to be satisfied with something considerably less than the most ideal piece of property right in the heart of Sunny Hills' holdings.

But can this negotiated settlement come about?

It can only come about when the leadership on both sides "sees the light," perceives that an amicable settlement is the only acceptable solution and starts negotiating in good faith.

As a starter we would suggest a face-to-face meeting of the full Sunny Hills board and the full school board. There are plenty of people of good will and calm reason on both sides.

They must get together and end this painful and mutually injurious controversy. (And each has got to start by admitting, at least to himself, that ALL the fault does NOT lie with the OTHER side; that is, each side must accept some responsibility for the controversy having got out of hand.)

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to politicians (right here in Marin County) who use business pressure and employer pressure to get individuals to cease activities in the field of public affairs. We need to have interested business and professional people take part in public affairs. They should be encouraged, not discouraged.

A BOUQUET to the San Rafael Board of Education for its progress to date toward establishment of a curriculum study committee.

A BOUQUET to Patrick J. Tarrant, the Irish home builder who successfully protested a move to change the name of Knocknaboul Way in Terra Linda. It does our heart good to see an individual citizen get his "Irish" up and change the course of human events.

BOUQUETS to all the people who suddenly have become interested in civil defense. In a sense, the Berlin crisis and the president's speech may be just what we needed—to arouse interest in this long-neglected field.

MEN OUTNUMBER WOMEN AS HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS

More men than women are teaching in public high schools for the first time in modern educational history.

A recent survey made by the Federal Office of Education found that men numbered 253,376 teachers, while women teachers numbered 232,193.

This total of 485,569 teachers was responsible for the training of 11,044,119 students in junior and senior high schools.

It is encouraging that the male contribution to the responsibilities and opportunities of the classroom is steadily increasing.

Men can add a distinctive and much-needed touch in the formation and training of teen-agers during their high school years. In countless ways the man can act as God's agent in shaping the future.

Do your part through prayer, word and deed to encourage more young men with character and competence to dedicate their lives to teaching.

"They that instruct many to justice, shall shine as stars for all eternity."
(Daniel 12:3)

Bless one and all, O Jesus, who undertake the noble profession of teaching.

Busterud Attacks Brown's Claims Of Credit For 'Good' Legislation

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — It is the prerogative of the incumbent governor to take credit for all the "good" legislation passed at the general session, and according to Republicans, Governor Edmund G. Brown is no exception.

By all the rules of the game, the incumbent governor can blow his own smoke to a credulous public, no matter where the so-called "good" legislation originated, under Democrats or Republicans.

Assemblyman John Busterud (R-San Francisco), chairman of the GOP Assembly caucus, however, accuses Governor Brown of a "deliberate attempt to steal undeserved credit" for certain bills of the 1961 legislature, which attempt, Busterud said, is "designed to cover up the Governor's lack of executive leadership."

SPECIFICALLY, Busterud charges:

"Brown claims his 2.6 billion dollar budget is something to crow about, but people won't forget it is 35 per cent higher than the last GOP budget of 1958-59.

"Brown wants to forget the bills he now takes credit for, which he threatened to veto when the Republicans first introduced these bills concerning narcotics during the last session.

"It is ridiculous for Brown to take credit for 20 years of Republican planning on the state's 1.75 billion water project.

"Brown is taking credit for results of a non-partisan citizen's commission on education, which proposed the new teacher-licensing law. He failed to point out he is responsible for the death of most of the session's key education bills, including one on multiple text-book selection designed to eliminate the state's wasteful method of buying school texts.

"On welfare, he talks of projects without reminding the people they have to pay the tab.

"His 'elimination of waste' in re-organization will cost taxpayers $250,000 annually.

"Unemployment he talks about, but is doing little to help create more jobs for our expanding population.

"HE (GOV. BROWN) grabs credit for the first juvenile court reforms in 45 years. If he considered the facts, he would know that the reforms were proposed by a Juvenile Study Commission appointed under a Republican administration.

"Before Governor Brown releases another publicity statement listing fairy tales of legislative accomplishments, he might consult state-wide polls which point out his declining popularity in the eyes of the voters. They know full well the only thing he has brought to Sacramento is three years of Brown-bottlenecks!"

Thus, Republican Busterud minces no words in attacking Democrat Brown.

This might be an early indication of what's going to happen next year, when election campaigns really get under way.

Berlin Likely To Remain Angry, Boiling Problem For Years Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Short of an explosion, you'd better get used to an angry Berlin problem which will boil up again and again for years.

It's a mixed-up and, in a sense, an ironic mess. Even President Kennedy isn't expressing hope for a permanent Berlin solution now.

He said in his TV talk Tuesday night there is "no quick and easy solution." Before he was President he said the dilemma would not be solved for years.

THIS IS WHAT'S likely to happen if there's no war now: Temporary arrangements to reduce the heat and then another flare-up.

Nothing shows better what a mess it is than Kennedy's statement Tuesday night: "Berlin is not a part of East Germany, but a separate territory under control of the Allied powers. Thus our rights are clear and firmly rooted."

Those rights may be clear in the Western mind but not necessarily clear in the thinking of the Russians or the East German Communists.

Berlin lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany, over and through which lie all the supply routes to Berlin. But Berlin itself is two cities, not one.

East Berlin is under East German Communist control. In West Berlin, whose almost 2½ million people's sympathies are with West Germany, the United States, Britain and France have almost 11,000 troops as a symbol of Western support for them.

IT'S EASY TO imagine how Americans would feel if, say, Kansas City, in the heart of the United States, was a Communist-run town whose links were with Russia and whose supplies and visitors came from there.

What then does Kennedy mean by saying the West has "rights" to Berlin? The U. S. government argues this way:

In agreements made with Russia during and after World War II Allied troops were to stay in Berlin until the victors in the war signed a peace treaty with a new German government.

The Soviets say, in effect, all this is now out of date and it's about time a peace treaty was finally signed.

But the trouble is there are two Germanies: the West German government of Chancellor Adenauer, allied to the West; and the East German Communist government which is actually a Russian puppet.

Adenauer insists no peace treaty with East Germany should be signed because this would mean the Allies agreed there could be two Germanies. He wants, and the United States backs him up, just one single German government for all Germany.

In short: A peace treaty with East Germany would mean and legalize the indefinite division of Germany. So long as the Allies do not sign with East Germany, Adenauer can hope for a single, united Germany some day.

HOW THEN COULD the two Germanies be united? This country suggests, and Russia wants no part of it, that the people in the two Germanies be allowed free and open elections to choose a new, single German government for all of them.

The reason the Russians won't buy is this: They control East Germany now. In a free election the East Germans would probably vote for a single, non-Communist government.

And in fairness: It is understandable that the Russians—after what a single German government did to them in World War II—may genuinely fear seeing a new, all-powerful, single German government again. So long as Germany is divided, its strength is split.

And here is the note of irony: Not only the Russians but probably millions of people in the United States, France and Britain—remembering what a single big Germany did in the war — don't want to see the two Germanies united.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Another Defender Of ACLU Position

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

A July 19 "Reader's Letter" expressed concern over A.C.L.U.'s efforts to protect freedom of political opinion by (among many other means) "reducing Congressional immunity." This question is a civil liberties' issue because the livelihood and reputation of an innocent person may be effectively destroyed by a Congressional Committee, without due process of law and without recourse.

This is done by public labeling as "a red traitor" any person whose political opinions deviate significantly from those of the Committee Congressmen (some of whom seem clearly convinced that democracy and the Bill of Rights are "tools of the Communist Conspiracy").

The substitution of trial by publicity, for legally protected court procedure consistently violates the First Amendment. Clearly, if any of the "unfriendly" witnesses had violated a law of the land, police power and judicial process would appropriately come into action. If the "crime" consists of non-conformist political opinion, then its suppression (by the social and economic reprisals that inevitably follow the "hearing") is totalitarian.

The A.C.L.U. maintains that the protection of the nation against subversion should be handled as what it really is, a police problem for the profesionally trained specialists of our law enforcement agencies. The House Un-American Activities Committee's attack on freedom of speech and association robs the United States of its real security — faith in our principles of freedom.

Perhaps Vacation Should Be Spent Digging Bomb Shelter In Yard

THE ANNUAL VACATION starts next week, but it comes this year at the wrong time.

Can't quite decide whether we should be packing our fishing gear for a carefree trip into the hills and lakes or stay home and start digging a bomb shelter in the back yard.

THE TONE of the President's talk the other night has once again fired Marin's interests in alerts ,shelters, fallouts and evacuation.

Only a few months back, we used to chuckle at the radio announcements explaining Conelrad, 640 or 1240 on your dial. But all of a sudden, we realize that 640 or 1240 kilocycles could come in handy one of these days.

For more than two years now, experts and non-experts have been hammering away with various advice on how to evacuate, don't evacuate, duck, run, walk, or hide. Might be well to review some of the highlights.

IF WE'RE lucky, we hear a steady three to five minute blast of the siren. This means attack is probable. A three-minute warbling tone or series of short blasts means take cover now. Any shelter. Further below ground level the better.

Shelters to escape the subsequent fallout seem to come in various sizes, shapes and prices. Material for a basement concrete block shelter, a do-it-yourself job with concrete blocks, costs between $150 and $200, it says here in the official bulletin.

Above ground, double wall shelter, most likely a contracting job, costs $700 and upwards. Cost would be similar on a pre-shaped corrugated metal or pre-cast concrete shelter.

The underground concrete shelter can be built by a contractor for $1,000 to $1,500, according to civil defense pamphlets.

PREPARE TO stay in hiding for two weeks. That means, you've got to have canned food, water, lighting, battery-powered radio, sanitation facilities, bedding, etc. all ready for the whole family.

For fallout protection, any building is better than none, a central room better than near the exterior wall, and having a two-story building over your head is better than just one story. But the safest is to make like a mole, and go underground — with at least three feet of solid earth all around you.

BUT ASIDE from this sudden fear of another world crisis, life goes on as usual in Marin. Joe Pecora's bowling team won the Pots and Pans League at the Country Club Bowl.

BRAVERMAN'S thought they had a ghost or prowler in the attic of their furniture store. Turned out to be a family of raccoons making themselves at home.

THE SAN RAFAEL Chamber of Commerce made a truck available for tenants to move out of the apartment destroyed by last week's tunnel fire.

Chamber Manager Paul Richards had more than just a professional interest in the fire and cave-in. He had only recently moved out of the apartment that burned. The man who moved into his former apartment was Chris Christiansen, administrative aide to the San Rafael city manager. Chris lost just about everything.

20 YEARS AGO

Marin supervisors held an executive session, emerged to say that they were refusing requests for salary raises for two chief deputies in the sheriff's office but granting increases for clerks, stenographer's, typists and others in lower brackets.

War was declared at Hamilton Field—by county agricultural commissioner Thomas W. Peryam, who wiped out thousands of ground squirrels as precaution against plague.

San Anselmo Police Officer Mansfield Lewis, installing a two-way radio system for the county while on leave, asked to have county jail prisoners dig ditches for the necessary cable.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

A vaudeville act that stumped the experts for years was called "Hans, the Educated Horse." Hans, a sway-backed fugitive from a glue factory, was billed as a "mathematical wizard." Let's say that a man in the audience called out "What's six times seven?" Hans would tap four times with his left forefoot, twice with his right: 42. If the problem was "Divide 96 by 3," Hans would tap three times with his left foot, twice with his right: 32.

The solution was simple, once it was discovered. Hans had been trained to tap each foot until signalled by a barely perceptible crooking of a finger by his master to stop.

While a Greenwich Village sidewalk artist was munching a hot dog, some rascal painted a mustache on his portrait of Winston Churchill.

"What are you going to do about it?" the artist was asked after he had surveyed the damage.

"Raise the price," said the artist.

Sausalito's Queen Of The Spoof

There's Much More To Unpredictable Enid Foster Than Her Sharp Wit And Sense Of Humor

By BRUCE COLEMAN

IN HER TOP FLOOR FLAT at 14 Princess Lane, Sausalito, artist Enid Foster works on a canvas. She's also a satirist, poet and sculptor, and one of Sausalito's most colorful and best liked citizens. (Independent-Journal photo)

"I'm a product of Sausalito," said Enid Foster, poet, artist and sculptor who lives in a top floor flat at 14 Princess Lane.

"I was practically born here," she says. "My mother went over to my grandfather's house in San Francisco to give birth to me . . . and came right back to Sausalito."

Enid likes to be called Enid. "Everybody calls me Enid around here—the butcher, the baker and everybody. I'm really Enid. I'm very proud of it."

THE WAY you find Enid is the way she is. She wears a hickory shirt, blue jeans and blue sneakers. Outdoors she adds a babushka. "I hate the way I have to dress," she tells. "I love beautiful clothes, but these last a long time and never go out of fashion."

You find Enid with Gus, her black dachshund. Gus greeted us, then hopped back into his baby basket under a table and covered himself with flannel blankets. "He gets cold," Enid said. "He had arthritis last winter."

Standing around the room are props from Enid's last show, including a sign, "There'll Always Be a Middle Class." Costumes are on the table from "The Memory of Past Lives," a bowl of cherries and, on the wall behind her bed, a few quotes in pencil.

"When I am reading a book and come across something I want to remember, I quickly write it on the wall," the artist said. One of the quotes said: "it is a transient world. We never know enlightenment."

There was a picnic basket on a table, paintings on the wall, a red flag, a wreath of leaves, an Oriental fan, a naked light bulb, a rubber ball on the floor.

ENID SAYS she likes to associate herself with Marin County. She was raised in Sausalito and spent her adolescence in Ross Valley. She studied in New York and London.

She is very proud of her ancestors. "They were from New England; they were Prussian and Hungarian. Hungarians," she said, "are wild, racy and reckless. My Prussian grandmother ruled the family like a dictator."

She has been interested in the arts ever since she can remember. "I was raised in an atmosphere of paints, artists and musicians. My father belonged to the Bohemian Club and artists used to come to our house in Sausalito. Before I was born, Robert Louis Stevenson and Joaquin Miller came to our home."

During her life the visitors included the poet Donald Graham, singer Harry Gillig and Dennis O'Sullivan, Father Sessnon, Catholic priest and bon vivant, and William Berg, retired business man and wit.

We asked Enid if she and fellow artists could make a living from their work. "I'm prepared to answer," she replied, "but it won't be the answer you expect. The way it is now, people don't realize the importance of art.

"THEY DON'T support the artist sufficiently and he has to wash dishes and do all jobs to keep working. Artists don't have time to develop their talent fully, and so American people are getting the art they deserve.

"Some artists get ahead on personal charm or by finding someone to back them. But these are exceptions to the rule. I think it's awful that there should be such a thing as a commercial artist.

"You have to be trained so that you can come up with exactly what is expected. Only rarely is there any good work done. It is all mechanical and ugly.

"People get their eyes full of all this commercial art work and it is like reconciling one's self to putting up with downgrade food and living quarters that are not as good as they should be.

"It is a sort of insidious way, of American people in particular . . . losing their particular dignity and putting up with so much ugliness.

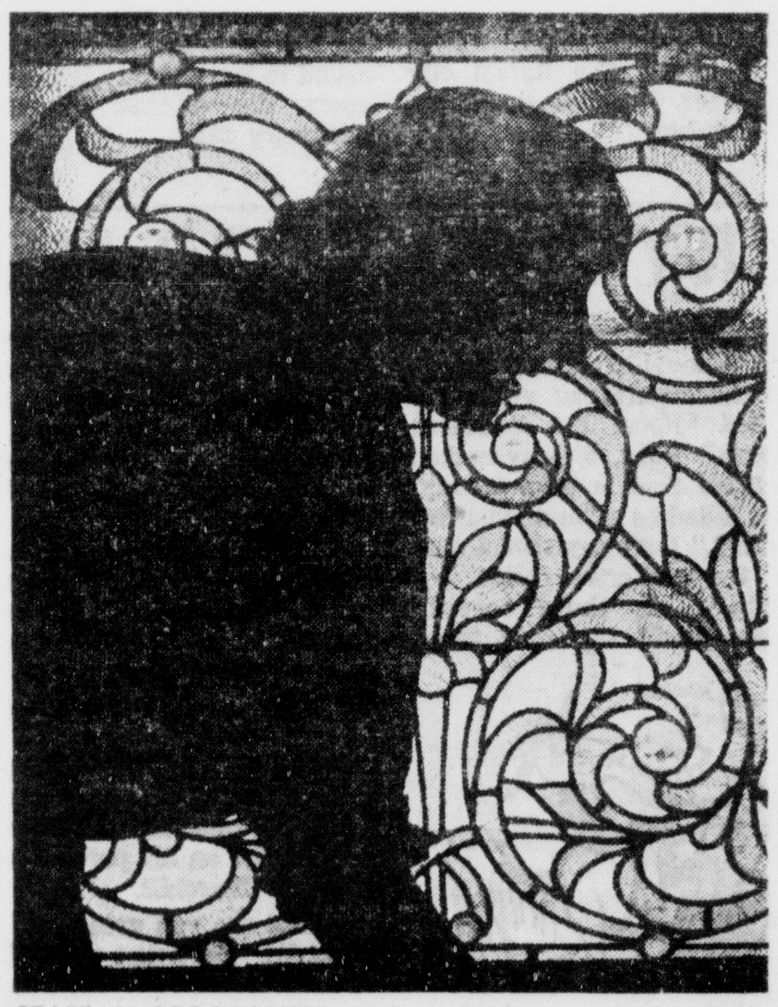

"I have a complete faith in people. I think, as they have a chance to choose and consider, they will almost invariably choose the good rather than the bad."

IT WAS A warm day and Enid brought out two cans of beer and served it in steins with potato chips. She indicated she had been for a walk with Gus.

"I can't go up the hill any more because the cars rush by," she said. "They puff gas in your face and scare the wits out of you. So I walk up and down Bridgeway all the time.

"Here we have a recognized danger — smog. We're too greedy to make any sacrifices. We are killing ourselves with our greed. I think it's time that people sit up and know that pure air and those things have to be paid for.

"People like beatniks can't face it—life itself, this grim, metropolitan society we have now. They haven't the virility of country people. They can't face it so they go into a coma.

"There's no escaping it. People have to live in communities. Completely country communities are dead and hopeless because of mechanized labor.

"There is no life in the country. There are no festivals celebrating crops. They have their TV. I think farmers probably must be the most commonplace people socially I can imagine.

"IF YOU WANT to hear old folk tunes, you must listen to the radio which emanates from the big cities.

"I don't pretend to have any profound knowledge about the world. All I care about is trying to do something that will help me communicate with the people that would stimulate and inspire me and offer me some very pleasant companionship. I'm not any more ambitious than that."

Speaking of her writing, Enid said "satire is a natural bent of mine."

Her last production, she said, was "There'll Always Be a Middle Class." It was a private production in her flat.

She said her work is not so much experimental as it is a synthesis of what she likes. She said a friend, Elizabeth Enquist, did a "wonderful parody" of Medea once so Enid decided to write a skit on it. Re-reading Euripedes, she continued, she was so stunned that she couldn't spoof it. "I had to do it straight."

Lynne Arden played Medea.

"I'm not always spoofing. When I came in contact with Euripedes, I no longer felt like spoofing.

"I WOULD like to see Sausalito as a theatrical center for experimental theater or any kind of theatrical adventure. A place to train young people who want to go on the stage.

"It would be wonderful if Sausalito would build a theater for the Sausalito Little Theater group, because they have proved themselves a very sound organization. I think it would be a matter of civic pride to Sausalito."

She said the ferryboat, Berkeley, is not suited for a theater, but could be "an art flea market." It could be, she said, "a different kind of place, informal, with pictures propped against the present seats. People could go and look at the view and then look at the paintings."

Enid's recent satire, "Serpent's Craft," was written by her. She also wrote the music, did the sets and costumes and directed.

She has used music such as block flute and drums with a play and again, the music of three recorders and piano with another.

Enid has a view overlooking the bay. In the back yard she has a long strip garden which she planted. Sixty-six in October, except for Gus, she lives alone.

"I HAVE relatives, but they have rejected me. It hurts me to think about it . . . an artist is not a tame type of person," she mused. "An artist is a person who has an abundance of vitality."

She does not take to people who come to Sausalito because they like its aspects, then, on building, cut trees, bulldoze land and make formal flower beds.

"The real Sausalitan is an individualist," the artist said. "Sausalito is the opposite of a tract home area, because every little hillock gives restrictions or advantages that make each piece of property completely indidvidual. People who come here make sacrifices. They are not near swimming pools and golf courses. It is a climb up to their place."

Miss Enquist says Enid has devoted her whole life to culture. "She was one of the group in the late 1930s that started a little theater and is behind existing theater and art movements and accomplishments in Sausalito," Miss Enquist said.

She is a paradox with her Pacific Heights background, hickory shirt and babushka. There is a story about how once, after an operation, she was recuperating at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco. Speaking in her mink-toned voice, she ordered sherry and then pulled out a great bandana and resoundingly blew her nose.

"WHEN VERY BROKE," Miss Enright said, she is apt to have a split bottle of champagne and caviar. And she owes the fact she can keep eating to Willie's, the house of extended credit.

"It could be 25 places that she has lived in Sausalito and redecorated and created gardens where there were none. When she moves, she leaves behind 'Fosterama' such as her knotty pine bathroom, with hand-painted knots.

"When she has money, she will put on a theatrical skit for artists. She has given paintings for benefits and bought art books and given them to art students who have needed them.

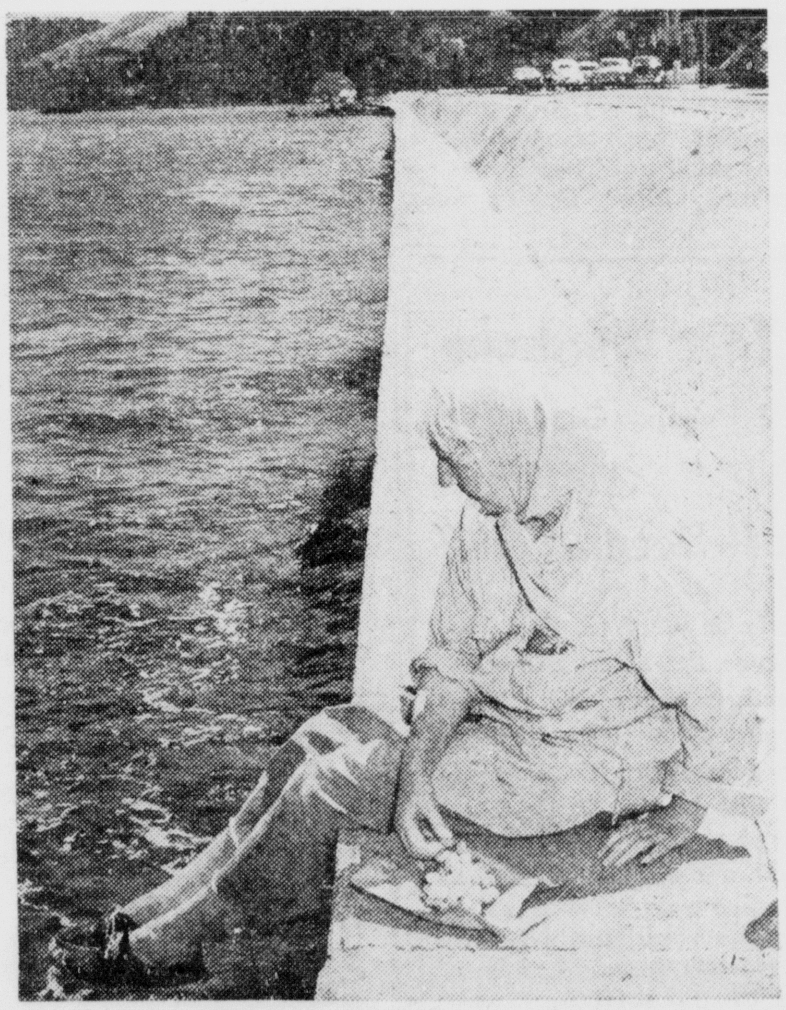

"She often plays in her own productions with masks and costumes that have been absolutely fabulous."

Artist Nan Fowler says: "She has a young mind. She'll never get old. She has an acute sense of propriety regarding the way people treat people."

Prim appearing, unpredictable Enid smacks of Sausalito with her humor and wit close at hand, her ability to use her tongue to bite not far away. She might be called Sausalito's queen of the spoof.

IN ONE OF her poems recently called "King Fool" she says:

"Science seeks the foolproof thing/but to make the fool a king/where the fool who sceptered sits/on the throne of others wits/as consumer he shall rule/so that everyone's a fool."

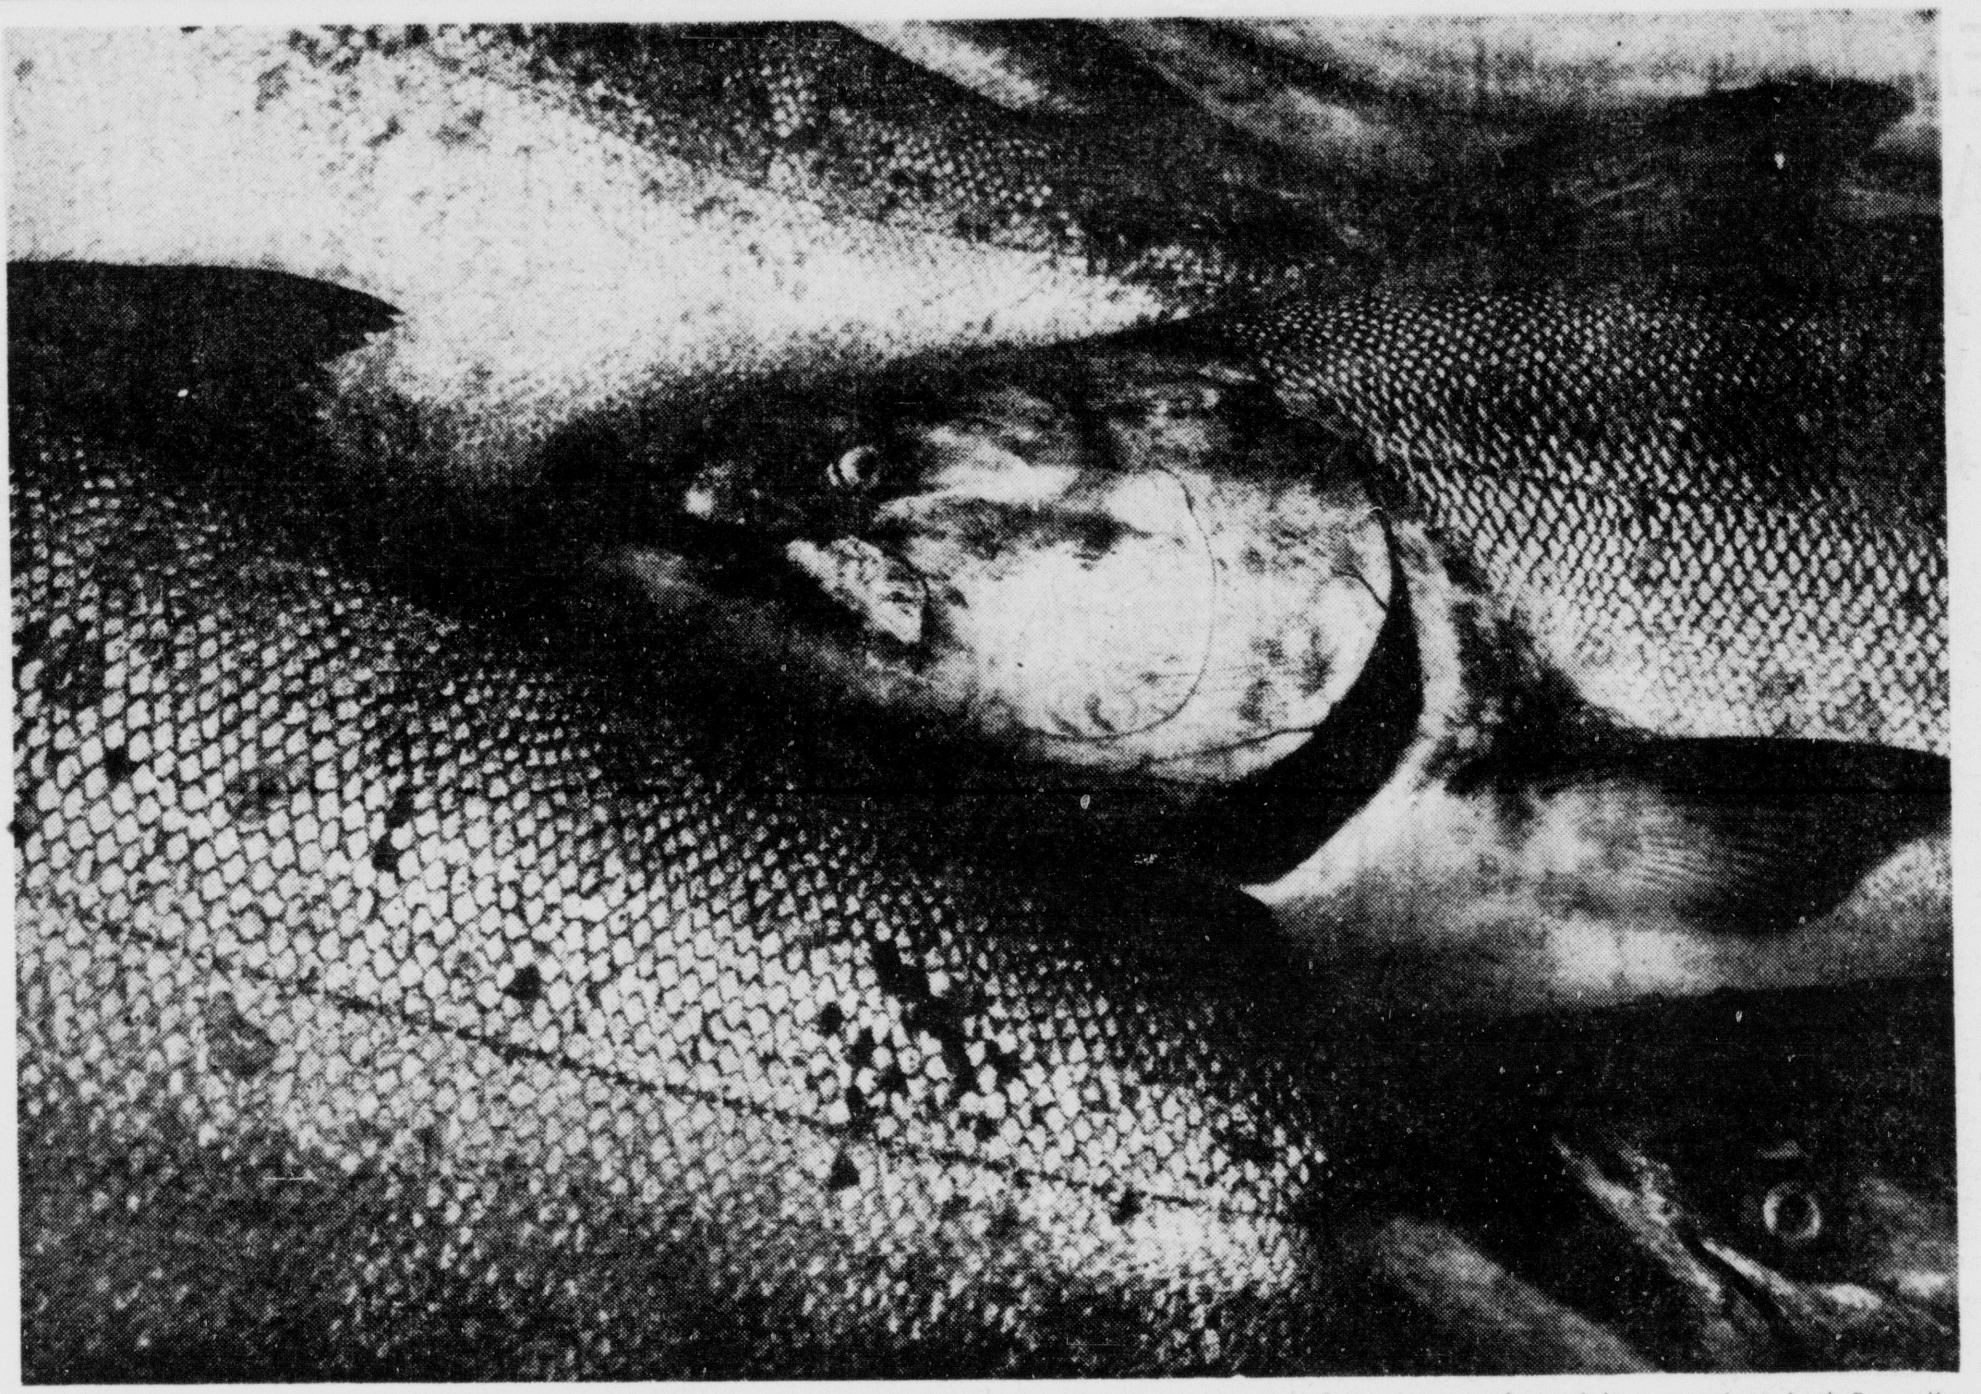

ENID FOSTER loves her Sausalito, and particularly its waterfront. Here she enjoys the fresh ocean breezes while munching some grapes during a pause in a morning walk. (Independent-Journal photo)

And Now They're Processing These Tasty Fish At Point Of Delivery In Sausalito

By HOYT BARNETT

Sausalito has been known for many things through the years. In recent times its dairies and its ferries gave way before the pressure of progress, and, along with a swelling population of commuters, came beatniks and bards.

But always beneath the surface and flow there has been one consistent role for Sausalito. It was, is and will continue to be the major harbor in this area for the deepwater small boats.

And it would be wrong to say that owners of yachts and cruising boats were before the fishermen in discovering the convenience of Sausalito as a harbor, for to any man who has brought a vessel through the relatively quiet countercurrents of Golden Gate's north shore it has been apparent that, passing Lime Point, he should turn left into Sausalito instead of standing into the turbulence, and often fog, barring his progress to San Francisco.

FOR SEVERAL years Sausalito's mooring basins have been filled, even overflowing, with pleasure vessels whose owners, in some cases, live as far away as Palo Alto and Sacramento. Even members of Corinthian and San Francisco yacht clubs (located at nearby Tiburon and Belvedere) have used Sausalito as a winter moorage.

Along with the large number of pleasure boats, a few commercial fishermen have used the harbor, too. But the number, for various reasons, was small until two things occurred: First, Golden Gate Bridge made it easy to keep the fish on wheels once they were hoisted to a Sausalito pier. Second, an invasion of northern trollers developed when the Oregon and Washington salmon runs decreased sharply, and in some instances disappeared.

These men from the north with their larger and heavier boats felt out of place among the picturesque but little "clipper boys" that flit like water bugs around the finger piers of Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco. Also, facilities needed by the large boats are different from those which suffice for a boat that leaves port each morning and returns at night.

The nomads from the north need a place to take a shower, a place to shave, and quiet waters for their boats to lie as they rest a day or two before "re-grouping" once more to set out upon the sea for a 10 to 12-day trip.

Oakland was waiting to accept these strangers, and four —even five years ago—a number of the visitors did use the facilities of the estuary there.

In the long time that San Francisco was building and maintaining its leadership as the fishing center of the Bay, only a few men had faith in the future of Sausalito as a fishing port. Some held on. Some quit. Lefty Sturiale, who had tried his luck in the risky business from Eureka to Morro Bay, was one who held on. Cass Gidley, almost a native son of the area, and himself a commercial fisherman, was another who had faith in the future of the port.

LAST YEAR Gidley quit the sea as a commercial salmon troller and, leasing the right to buy fish and service boats on the Associated Dredging Co. dock in Sausalito, went into competition with Sturiale.

Almost coincidentally with Gidley's going into business, the veteran fisherman's organization, Halibut Producers

'Drycleaning Ruined My Cloth Flower Decorations'

The decorative flowers, when you sent them to the dry cleaner, had rolled edges but now are flat and frayed. Here is something to consider before you blame drycleaning for the droopy decorations. Examination reveals that the flowers had cut edges and were not bound. Further, an adhesive had been applied to the petals to hold them in a rolled position and to prevent fraying.

The trouble was that the decorations could not be removed from your dress because they were attached by metal prongs and the adhesive used to keep the petals whole and rolled was soluble in drycleaning solvent. After cleaning, most of the adhesive was removed and the flowers lay flat with the cut edges frayed.

This type of garment normally is sent to the drycleaner, therefore, the manufacturer should have been careful to use adhesives on the decorations that would not dissolve in drycleaning solvent. The drycleaner could not suspect that the adhesive was soluble and since he could not remove the flowers, it would appear that the manufacturer was responsible for the damaged decorations.

Salmon Trollers From The North Now Call Sausalito Home Port

Their Migration Has Had A Major Impact Upon Marin's Colorful Waterfront City

Co-op of Seattle, decided to expand its activities and undertake the processing and marketing of salmon landed by its members in California ports.

This challenging move by the northerners met head on the established interests who, for years, had operated in this area—the Paladinis, the Lazios, the Aliotos, and the Balasteris.

Walter Johnson, vigorous young manager of the producing co-op, had been waiting and planning for several years before making this invasion of a new operating area. And when he moved, he opened almost simultaneously in Eureka, Fort Bragg, Bodega Bay and Moss Landing, arranging in each place for a dealer who was not associated directly with the important San Francisco group to act as his receiving agent.

The invasion, thus underway, was a bold—almost belligerent—move, but it had one inherent and important weakness. Johnson and his producing cooperative had no landing facilities in San Francisco Bay for the normally large salmon production from the Farallon Island area.

Near mid-season last year Gidley began acting as a receiving agent for members of the co-op. It was a makeshift arrangement, and at best a trial, for the salmon landed here were shipped by truck to Eureka for mild cure processing or freezing.

ALTHOUGH THE amount of salmon handled by Gidley for the co-operative's account was not large last year, and the tonnage hardly could be called important in the general industry, there was one impact of considerable significance—for in Sausalito the northern fishermen found a home port away from home that was much to their liking.

Even though many individual fishermen expressed their

THESE SALMON have been scored and are shown on the processing table of the Tarantino mild cure plant in Sausalito. The plant is a joint venture of N. L. Tarantino and Cass Gidley, and while in its initial year, it has already proven to be a successful venture. Another Sausalito mild cure processing plant for salmon is operated by Lefty Sturiale.

A BIG YEAR

satisfaction with Sausalito as an operating port, the full extent of the migration was not apparent until the 1961 salmon season was about to open. It was then that the boats converged upon Sausalito almost like an armada—from winter moorages at Pittsburgh, from Oakland, Richmond, San Rafael, and Napa. In one day alone, April 14, Gidley delivered 186,000 pounds of ice into boats waiting for the opening of the season the following day. Sturiale, too, was busy, helping the boats that deliver to him get ready to put to sea.

In the weeks preceding the opening of the season, Johnson in Seattle was receiving word from members of the cooperative indicating that many more members were planning to use Sausalito as a delivery port in 1961 than had made use of the makeshift facilities available the previous year.

The needs of the additional fishermen imposed upon Gidley the necessity for further expansion, for no longer could the fish justifiably be trucked all the way to Eureka for processing.

Associating himself with N. L. Tarantino Co. of San Francisco, Gidley and his new affiliate established a modern mild curing plant on the dock at Sausalito so that fish landed in the mornings could be "split" and brined in the tierces and shipped to cold storage in Santa Rosa before nightfall.

BY THE TIME the season's first production hit the port, Sturiale, too, had his mild cure line operating, and for the first time in the history of Sausalito, boat landings of salmon in the port definitely and emphatically exceeded the tonnage coming directly into San Francisco.

By the mid-season mark of July 1, exactly 365 unloadings totaling just under a third of a million pounds had been made at Gidley's dock, and Sturiale had maintained a large production also.

The large landings did not so much reflect large offshore catches, for the average landing per boat was barely more than 800 pounds. But the improved facilities of the port were attracting to Sausalito at least 200 high producers who, in other years, had delivered their catches to other dealers in other places.

Production for the second half of the season is obscured by fog banks still unformed, but if the pattern of the past can be relied upon to indicate the future, Sausalito will receive substantial tonnage from the usual late July and August spawning run into the Sacramento river system.

The considerable success that Tarantino and Gidley jointly have enjoyed in the mild curing operation — an enterprise that is distinctly separated from the operation of the dock and the servicing of the boats—has set the two to thinking of various other potentials inherent in the expanding fish landings in the area.

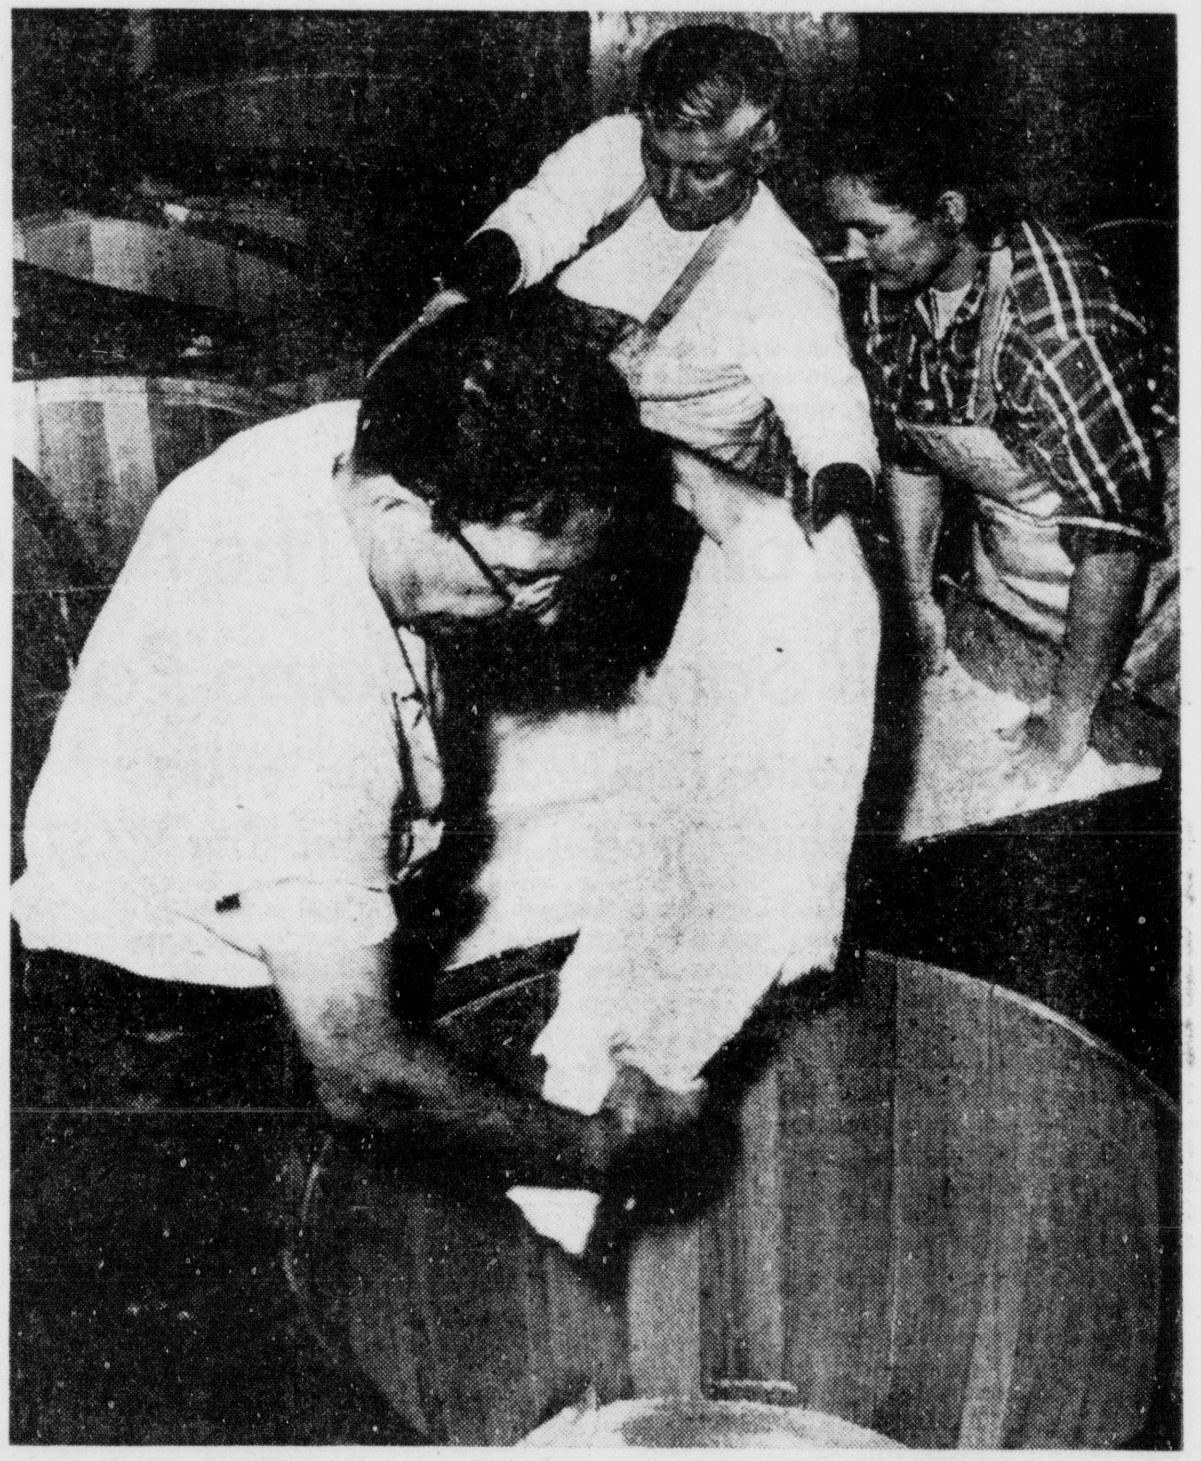

As a start, Gidley has prepared to explore the potentials of a retail establishment on the dock, and he expects to open a grotto for the preparation and sale of fish and chips, fish of various sorts as they are landed from the boats, as well as the traditional crab, shrimp and other seafood cocktails that for many years have been the stock in trade at San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf.

ALSO UNDER consideration by Tarantino and Gidley are the obvious developments for wintertime activities when the salmon no longer are in the off-shore waters. Among these is the future course of Gidley's Lighthouse Crab Co., which for the past five years operated a number of portable crab cooking pots at various localities in Marin and adjacent counties.

Tarantino, while a newcomer to the Sausalito area, is old for his years among the operators in San Francisco. He is a brother of the Tarantinos who own and operate Bell Smoke Fish Co., but, while maintaining his vice-presidency in the firm, he no longer is actively engaged in the company's business. Instead, he and William Markey, a veteran broker and importer in San Francisco, have joined forces under the firm name of N. L. Tarantino Co., and are exploring areas adjacent to San Francisco where they may expand their activities.

The economic life of Sausalito has felt the impact of the invasion of northern fishermen, and it is an impact the merchants enjoy. According to Gidley's estimate, the owner of every "trip" boat that unloads salmon in Sausalito spends about $100 with local merchants for groceries and clothing and other necessary items before putting to sea again. In addition, each of the 365 boats that unloaded at his dock between April 15 and July 1 bought an average of two tons of ice made in San Rafael and 175 gallons of fuel from the Sausalito dealer. Additionally, boatyards and machine shops of the area benefit by providing needed services to these boats.

Nor, as Gidley says, is there a flight of capital from the area because these fishermen pick up an average check of about $500 when they unload. Only a relatively small amount of salmon is consumed locally, and the money carried by the fishermen as they once more put to sea is "foreign" money that merely passed through the banks of Sausalito.

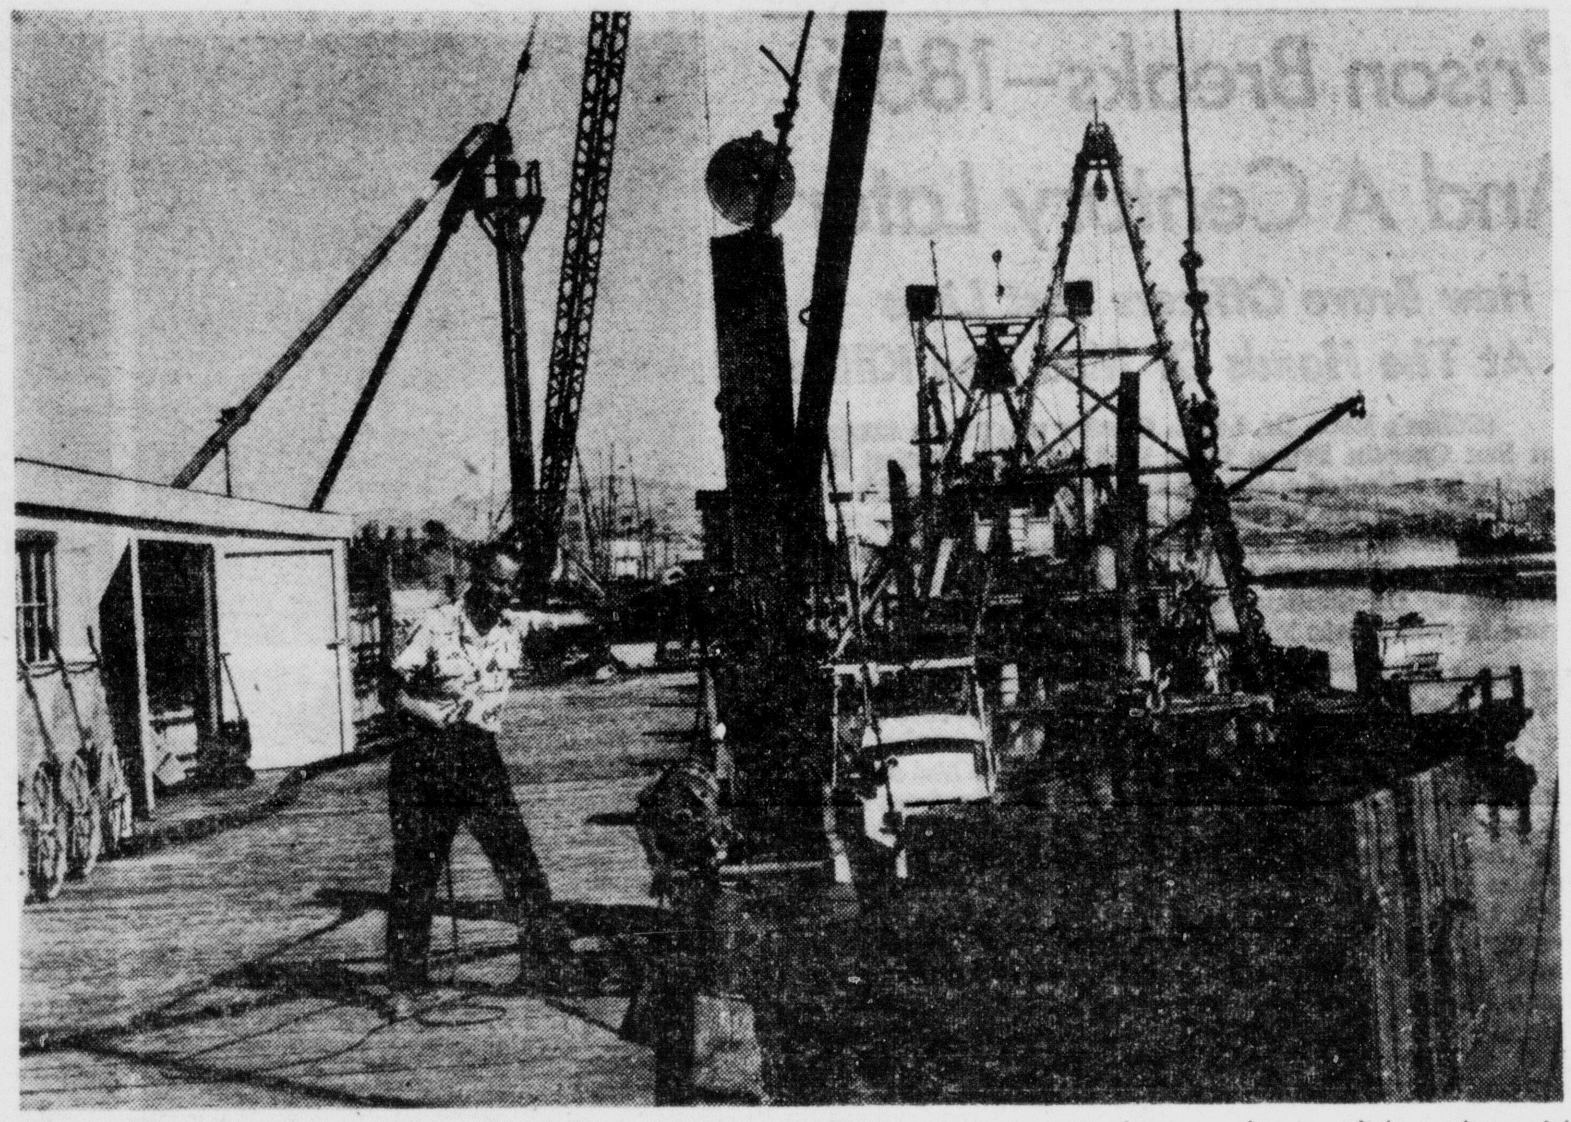

A FINAL IMPACT of the invasion from the north is now being felt by the real estate brokers and agents. As these boat owners from the rainy coastal country of Oregon and Washington get a summertime sample of Marin County's climate, more and more of them are making plans to emulate the old Romans of whom it was said, "Where they conquer, there they dwell."

Among late comers to this area are the Richard Kings and their children of the troller Cherokee, and the Edward Martins of Last Chance. Both families now are afloat in a combination way, the fathers aboard their respective boats and the wives and children in separate house trailers. Both families are looking for homes to buy in Marin County with the idea of taking up permanent residence here until at least the time their children have finished their secondary education.

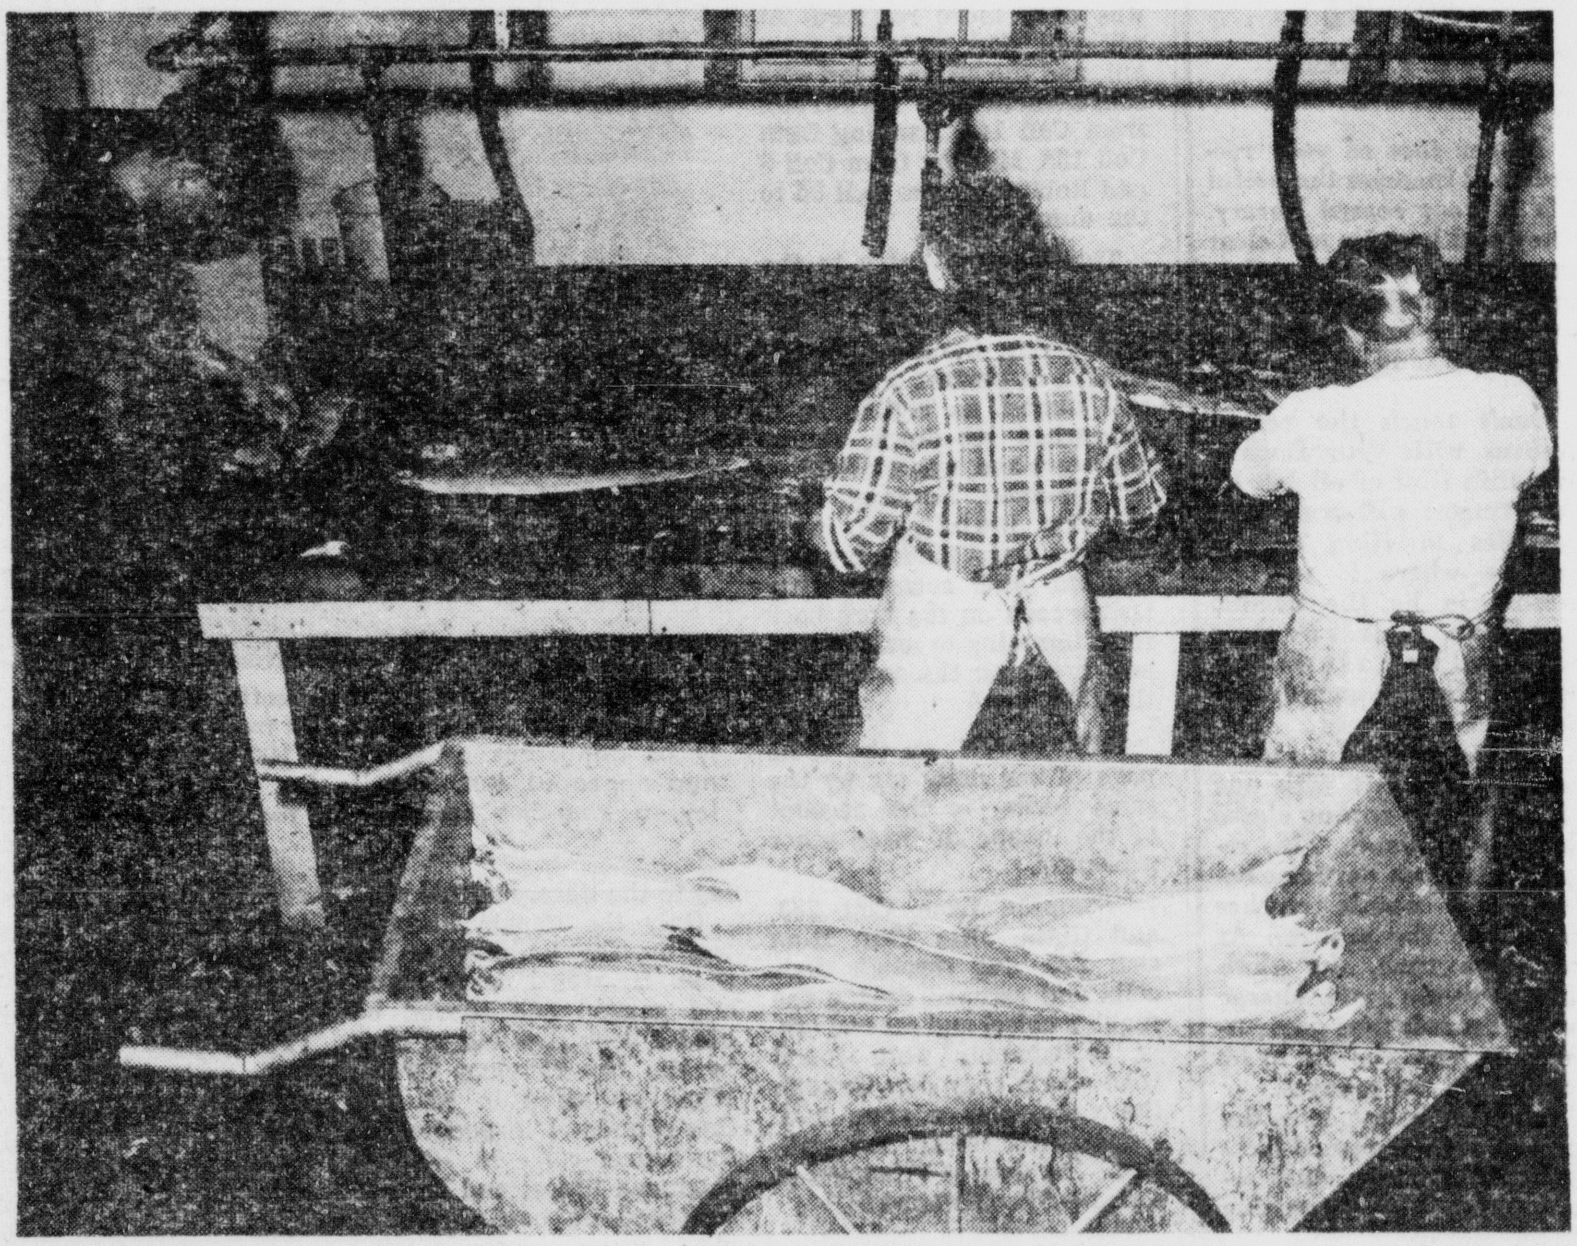

These fishermen who are at a quite late date discovering Sausalito are not only interested in salmon. The new crop of operators to find this area usually own boats that are much larger and represent a greater investment (usually $25,000 to $40,000) than is customarily found in the traditional San Francisco fleet.

These boats, to make interest and meet depreciation on investments, must be employed for more than the few months that salmon normally are plentiful in the area. Most of them are capable of employment in several trades — salmon, small drag boat operations, long lining market fish and for albacore. Actually, by July 1, quite a few of the large trollers took off their salmon gear, rigged for albacore and departed for the south.

This does not mean they are lost to Sausalito for the rest of 1961. Indeed, if albacore follow the mysterious pattern of their recent ways, each of these vessels will return to Sausalito several times more this year to discharge their 15 to 20 tons of "long fins" at either the dock of Gidley or Sturiale for transhipment to canneries at Astoria or Long Beach.

OPERATING THE HOIST that lifts salmon from the commercial fishing boats alongside the Sausalito pier is Cass Gidley. Gidley quit the sea as a commercial salmon troller last year to go into business buying fish and servicing boats. This year, in cooperation with N. L. Tarantino, he opened a mild cure processing plant for the salmon.

Prison Breaks—1856 And A Century Later

How Brave Officers Lost Lives At The Hands Of Mad Dog Killers

(Editor's Note: Dr. Leo L. Stanley was prison surgeon at San Quentin Prison from 1913 to 1951. During that period he collected a store of knowledge of prison life and the history of the institution. He is also the possessor of some pointed ideas of his own on the prison's role in society, as can be seen in the article below, one in a series written by Dr. Stanley which has appeared from time to time in your Marin Magazine.)

By DR. LEO L. STANLEY

"At four o'clock, p.m., while the prisoners were at supper in the dining room, four of them seized Captain Fitzpatrick by the throat and arms with the intention of securing him to aid their contemplated escape. Fitzpatrick was severely choked while in their hands. One of the number named Murphy brandished a knife over his head, threatening to kill him if he would move an inch.

"However, while engaged with these desperadoes, a man named Toomey rushed to rescue the captain and succeeded in releasing him from his perilous position, at the same time receiving a severe blow on the head with an iron bar, in the hands of one named Anderson, who stood at the dining room door with the weapon, threatening to knock down any man who might attempt to escape by the door. But, in a short time, seeing that he was baffled, he slunk away, among the rest of the prisoners who had come out and went to their respective cells immediately, and quiet was once more restored. At roll call they were all present, and the affair ended with confinement of Anderson from Cell 144, Banning from Cell 133, Murphy from Cell 3 and Robinson from Cell 35 to the dungeon."

This was the entry in the daily log of San Quentin Prison of Jan. 13, 1856. The following day, Sunday, Jan. 14, written in perfect script, and still almost as legible as it was when set down, almost 100 years ago, was written:

"Anderson, Banning, Murphy and Robinson were brought to the ladder for punishment and received fifty lashes each on the bare back for attempting to make a general break on the evening of the 13th inst."

SET DOWN on the same page of the daily log by the same scribe is the account of the escape of three other prisoners.

"Sampson from Cell 263, and Glass, alias Finn from Cell 275, dug through their cells and escaped during the night, a chisel and several other instruments were found with which they dug through the cells, also a rope with which they scaled the wall. Total Number of Prisoners at 4 p.m—672. (Escaped 3)."

Slightly less than a century late, in 1952, two other convicts made a futile attempt to escape from San Quentin. But in their attempt, they brutally took the lives of two fine, brave officers entirely helpless to protect themselves.

Enlightened, modern penologists had decreed that Correctional officers should go unarmed, not even with a cane, a club or a baton, in the performance of their unenviable duty.

TWO MAD DOG killers, Burwell and Rodgers, appeared at the prison library, a temporary Quonset hut structure, about 6:45 in the evening. Burwell had late lockup privileges. Rodgers had managed to get out of his cell by exchanging identification cards with another inmate, who had the privilege of going to the library at this hour.

Only the inmate librarian was in the building at the time. He was quickly bound and gagged and shoved behind a book rack out of sight by the two convicts. Officer Wiget appeared in his routine rounds of inspection. As the officer came in, Rodgers shammed illness and lay outstretched on one of the tables. Solicitous of the inmate's welfare, Wiget bent over him and offered to escort him to the hospital.

As he did so, Burwell, age 24, slipped up behind him and struck him a cruel blow with an ax. Although stunned, the ofifcer fought back with his bare hands. He was able to wrest away one of the deadly knives, with which both convicts were armed, and plunged it into Burwell's back. But it was two, armed, against one, who had no means of defense to protect himself. Wiget was beaten and stabbed to death. His body was dragged to the rear of the room.

The murderers did not leave the hut. They waited for Officers Dascomb and Stewart, who, realizing that Wiget had not returned from his rounds, went to look for him. On entering the library, these officers found Rodgers again lying on the table shamming illness. As they bent over to see what was the matter, Burwell, stealthy as a cat, slipped up behind them and slugged both with the same ax he had used on Wiget. Both were left unconscious.

The killers then went out into the main yard. Officer Verne Macklin challenged them, inquiring about their presence outside their cells at this time of night. They told him they were sent to the movie projection room at the rear of the mess hall to get some phonograph records. Macklin went with them. There, in that secluded area, they savagely attacked him. He died almost immediately with stab wounds into his heart.

INMATE Gallegos, watching a basketball game from the projection room, saw the attack. He ran out, giving the alarm. Immediately the entire prison force was marshaled. The two murderers were taken without a struggle. On them were found their prison made arms—two knives fashioned from a pair of tailor shop scissors, and a double-bitted ax, used for clearing mortar from bricks.

Six long years elapsed before the lives of these two useless members of society were snuffed out in the gas chamber. Anti-capital punishment forces stress that they should have been spared. According to their way of thinking, a life of ease and comfort in one of California's luxury prisons, with a chance to murder other fine law enforcement officers, should be ample punishment for their dastardly deed.

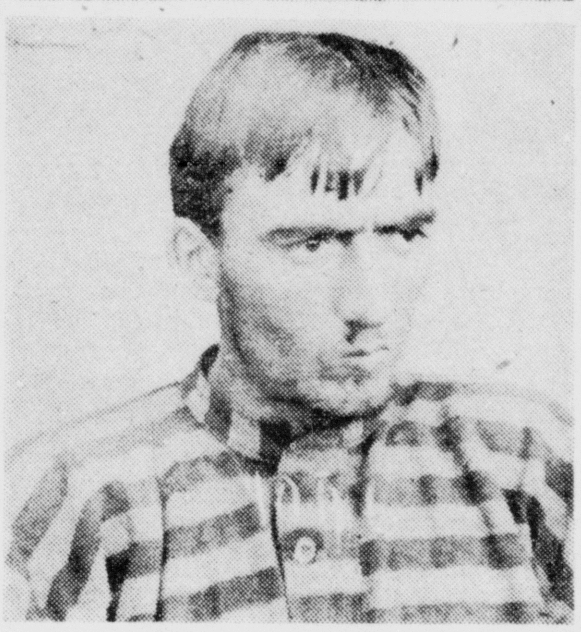

A club, in the hands of Officer Wiget, a weapon denied him by the State Department of Corrections, might have saved his life and that of Officer Macklin, and spared Dascomb and Stewart injuries which will remain with them the rest of their lives.

Possibly "bringing to the ladder and giving 50 lashes on the bare back" to some of these vicious criminals, who, through the centuries have changed little for the better, might have a salutary effect.

Certainly, the millions of the taxpayers' hard earned dollars lavishly spent on so-called rehabilitation might do just as much good if they were consigned to the incinerator.

EARLY DAY convicts at San Quentin Prison were a hard-looking lot, and frequently as dangerous as these of 100 years ago appeared. But, says Dr. Leo L. Stanley, a long-time surgeon on the prison staff, some of our present-day criminals are no less vicious. Here he tells you about two mad dog killers whose attempted prison break cost two San Quentin officers their lives.

Proper care of your records will increase the useful life of your record library. They will be crisp and clear even after many, many playings. The following simple precautions are well worth practicing and remembering:

Don't touch the record grooves with your fingers. The thin film of oil left by your fingers will cause dust particles to cling to the grooves where it will be ground in by the needle. Handle the records by their edges and by balancing against finger touching the center of the record.

Always wipe off a record before playing it with one of the treated wiping cloths that are available. This removes the dust particles before the needle crushes them into the grooves. At the same time, the cloth eliminates the static charge on the record, thus preventing dust from the air to be drawn into the grooves.

When not in use, keep the records in their record jackets. This prevents dust accumulation and scratching during storage.

Store the records in a vertical position to prevent warping and to prevent undue pressures from the weight of a stack of records.

Do not leave records on the record changer spindle. On hot days, you may find that your records have become cup shaped from being on the spindle.

Above all, be sure that your needle is not worn. A diamond needle is your best investment and will last from 800 to over 1,000 hours of playing time. Bring your needle in for a free inspection.

They Come To See The Big Trees

FROM NEAR AND FAR they come to the Muir Woods National Monument to marvel at its stately redwood trees and to enjoy the relaxing beauty and serenity of the place. These visitors to the world-famed beauty spot in South Marin are Mrs. Mabel Baker of Quincy, Ill., Jason B. Manzer of San Francisco, Lois Baker of San Francisco and Mrs. Maude Murphy of Peoria, Ill. They have just arrived at Muir Woods, and are unloading their picnic lunch. For other photos at Muir Woods taken by Independent-Journal photographer Joe DeNarie during a weekend visit with his camera, turn to pages M-12 and M-13.

INSIDE THE NATIONAL monument, visitors are greeted by majestic redwoods of such stature and stateliness as to cause those seeing them for the first time to gasp in disbelief.

MUIR WOODS ATTRACTS VISITORS BY THOUSANDS

Muir Woods National Monument was established Jan. 9, 1908, by proclamation of President Theodore Roosevelt to preserve a virgin stand of some of this country's finest redwoods.

It is the only area in the national park system which contains trees of the mighty Sequoia sempervirons species.

Located at the foot of Mt. Tamalpais, it is Marin's most famous scenic attraction. Thousands of visitors from all over the world, many of them pouring over the Golden Gate Bridge 10 miles away, visit the monument annually to marvel at the towering trees and enjoy the tranquility of the forest.

There are 424 acres of redwood grove including wooded canyons and hillsides. More than five miles of hiking trails permit visitors to stroll through the trees to their hearts' delight.

The monument is open daily and also offers guide, gift-shop, and eating facilities. There is a limited picnic area, but no fires or camping is permitted.

MUIR WOODS IS PARADISE for the lover of the out-of-doors, and especially for those who enjoy a walk in serenely wooded surroundings. Strolling along a path here are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gatje of New York and Kay Mickle of Berkeley. You'll find visitors from just about every state of the union in Muir Woods on any given day during the tourist season. (Independent-Journal staff photos by Joe DeNarie)

ONE OF THE RANGERS at the national monument, Henry B. Strasser, answers some queries of some Muir Wood visitors. Picking up the information are Mr. and Mrs. Alen McPeak and son Timmie, 3, of Palo Alto.

YOU CAN STROLL along the paths that wind their way among the big trees of Muir Woods, or you can do as T. E. Wilde of Berkeley and his daughters, Sue and Dee, are doing here — just stop and enjoy the beauty that surrounds you.

Weekend Among The Redwoods

EVEN THE SHADED paths of Muir Woods can be tiring on the tootsies if you walk long enough. Ginny Bolz of Pittsburgh, Pa., gives her feet a rest. Seated with her is George Morris, also from Pittsburgh.

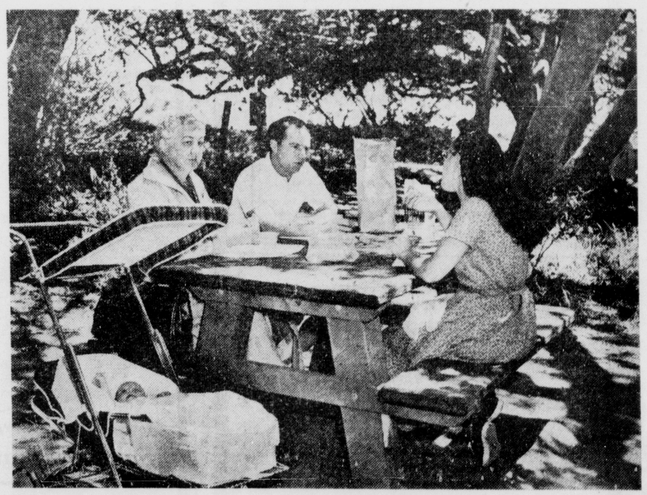

ALSO RELAXING, and very comfortable while they do it, are J. R. Nelson and Louise Connolly, who find the big trees an interesting change of pace from the beaches of their home community of Malibu.

COVER PHOTO

VISITORS to Muir Woods National Monument always find that it was impossible in advance to fully visualize the size and dignity of the towering redwoods which have won the place its fame. Here some of the weekend visitors admire a few of the many giants to be found in the park. (Independent - Journal staff photo by Joe DeNarie)

ENJOYING A PICNIC at Muir Woods National Monument are Miss Joanna Potter of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Brock Thompson of San Francisco. Baby Mark Thompson, two months, enjoys himself in his buggy.

A TOUR OF THE national monument is conducted by one of the rangers who passes along to weekend visitors interesting information on the history of the impressive redwoods to his charges.

BOOK REVIEWS

Story Of Explorer And His Frustrations

A SENIOR EDITOR of the Saturday Evening Post, Robert Murphy has written "The Haunted Journey," a new book about the daring Danish explorer, Vitus Bering, who discovered Alaska.

THE HAUNTED JOURNEY by Robert Murphy, Doubleday and Co., 210 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Bryce Anderson.

Peter the Great was a dying man when in 1724 he ordered that an expedition be sent across Siberia and into the waters beyond to learn, among other things, whether there was a land connection between Asia and America.

Peter had created the Russian Navy, and, lacking Russians with navigational experience to officer it, had recruited Scandinavians for most of the naval command jobs. He placed one of these, a Dane named Vitus Bering, in charge of the expedition.

Peter died before Bering left St. Petersburg. Bering spent nearly six years on his first expedition and missed seeing America because of fog.

On a second expedition, however, Bering reached the Alaskan coast. His ship was wrecked in the Aleutians, and he died there on an island that now bears his name. But his lieutenant, a Swede named Sven Waxell, and the commander of a second ship, the Russian Aleksey Chirokov, succeeded in getting back to Kamchatka — and eventually to Russia—with reports that resulted in Imperial Russia's colonizing of Alaska and planting a string of posts down the California coast almost to Marin County.

Robert Murphy, a senior editor of the Saturday Evening Post, tells the story of Bering's two expeditions with considerable detail in "The Haunted Journey." It is a tale of frustrations. It is a tale, also, of adventure and exploration against tremendous odds.

It is not a book for quick reading in a single evening, but one that will reward the lover of history.

COLLECTED POEMS, Robert Graves, Doubleday and Co., 358 pages. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Poetry is sense, good sense, penetrating, often heartrending sense, says Robert Graves, a view that runs somewhat counter to the prevailing style of poetry. But then Robert Graves has always been one to soar on an independent track toward his goals, as indicated in his other works, "Food For Centaurs," with its essays, poems, short stories and critiques; his "Five Pens in Hand," "They Hanged My Saintly Billy" and the autobiography, "Good-bye to All That."

Now the poetic fruits of his mind have been assembled in this volume spanning the years from 1914, when the author was 19, to the present, which finds the man at home on the island of Majorca. The author, however, also has been elected to the Chair of Poetry at Oxford University.

Despite this awesome title held by the author, the man has produced a collection of always interesting and usually quite intelligible and direct poetry to be listened to and enjoyed by everyman. Graves' own personal view of his subject matter tends to keep the reader going, and his grasp of man's literary accomplishments through the civilized centuries enriches his work and gives it a depth so often lacking in contemporary poetry. Not the least of Robert Graves' attractions is his sense of humor. However, the overriding characteristic of the volume is, as the author believes, his good sense.

FOR CHILDREN

Marin Women Collaborate On Book About Sandpipers

SANDPIPERS by Edith Thacher Hurd, illustrated by Lucien Bloch, Thomas Y. Crowell Co. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Two talented Mill Valley women have collaborated beautifully on this delightful book for children, part of the Crowell Company's excellent "Let's Read and Find Out" series.

Both the text by Mrs. Hurd and the illustrations by artist Bloch (Mrs. Stephen Dimitroff) stress simplicity. Both strike a happy, cheerful note. And both are chock full of appeal for the little ones.

The book tells the story of the life cycle of the sandpipers, that sprightly little coast dweller whose happy-go-lucky existence makes him a natural subject for such a book.

In hearing or reading it, the child will learn something of the wonders of new life, the vastness of the seashore and the beauty of our bird friends. And while he is being so educated and so stimulated, he will also be thoroughly entertained.

Mrs. Hurd and Miss Bloch have seen to that with their superb work in words and pictures. To us this seems the veritable model of a book which is both the kind that parents like to place in the hands of their youngsters, and the kind the children like to receive and treasure through their young and tender years.

PSYCHOANALYSIS OF THE PROSTITUTE by Maryse Choisy, Philosophical Library Inc., 138 pages, $4.75. Reviewed by Don Keown.

As a young reporter Maryse Choisy joined a Parisian house of ill repute as a maid to gather material for a book on prostitution. The result was "A Month Among the Girls," something of a best-seller in Europe.

Since then she has been preoccupied with the problem of prostitution and its psychological and social implications.

Formerly president of the French Psychoanalytic Society, she now edits Psyche, an international monthly journal on psychoanalysis.

In this book she analyses the biographies and case histories of call girls, street walkers, pimps and their customers, probing for the deep causes of prostitution. Some of the material comes from her own clientele as a psychoanalyst. Her conclusion: Prostitution is only one facet of a whole stage of mind and cannot be changed by laws. Instead, our whole spiritual atmosphere must be changed —the problem has to be tackled at its roots.

She puts it: "Only a metamorphosed humanity which doesn't desire call girls, but prefers the love of Juliet, can achieve a harmonious life on earth and in heaven."

PETER J. ROBOTTI
The tablecloth world

MUCH DEPENDS ON DINNER by Peter J. Robotti, Fountainhead Publishers, 306 pages, $8.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This book is subtitled "an illustrated summation of three decades of la haute cuisine."

In the author, an enthusiastic student of things gastronomical, takes you into some of the world's most famous restaurants and hotels, introduces you to their chefs and their secrets, and briefs you on some of the customs of the tablecloth world and how they developed.

There are several chapters on wines and wine service, some advice on tipping, rules of etiquette for the restaurant, a spirited defense of desserts as an essential part of the meal, a chapter on coffee, Robotti's formula for rating a restaurant, separate studies of dining in London and New York, recollections of the old Waldorf-Astoria, etc.

The content appears to be the usual mixture of commonsense and fads, good taste and downright ostentation that make up the world of the gourmet. Although the presentation appears lacking in organization, we think you will find the book interesting and fun if your interest lies in the direction of fine dining.

SUNSET IDEAS FOR BUILDING BARBECUES by editors of Sunset Books and Sunset Magazine, Lane Book Co., 72 pages, $1.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The Sunset staff here does its usual thorough job in the do-it-yourself field, offering ideas and plans for outdoor cooking facilities that range from simple grills to full-scale open air kitchens. Some 175 photographs and drawings amplify the text.

While some projects are on the elaborate side, the emphasis is upon the inexpensive and relatively easy to build, and upon barbecues that will fit into the small backyard or garden.

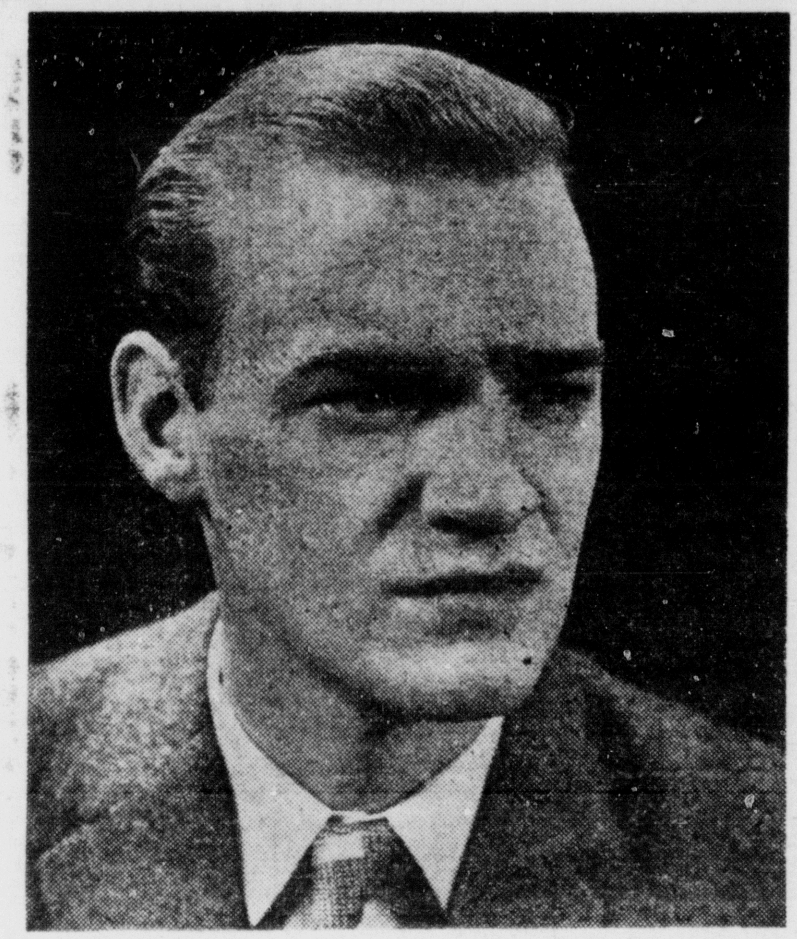

Another fairly recent Sunset book, same price, which tackles the question of how to make the front of your home more inviting and livable is entitled "Ideas for Entryways and Front Gardens." It includes some practical suggestions for lighting, for plantings and screens, steps and walkways, parking area, streetside plantings, etc.

THE CUP, THE BLADE OR THE GUN by Mignon G. Eberhart, Random House, 241 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Patricia Zinn.

"The Cup, The Blade or The Gun" is another novel with a plantation setting in Civil War times. However, author Mignon G. Eberhart weaves an interesting plot of romance and suspense.

The heroine is this time a Northern belle who, through an impulsive marriage to a Confederate officer, gets tangled in the web of his family on the beleagured plantation Honotassa.

RONALD COLLIER, 27-year-old dramatist from Inverness, will make his motion picture debut in "Horn," a JEB Pictures production based upon a 1958 play written by Collier and staged successfully in Hollywood.

Theater-Minded Ex-Marinite Makes A 'Sale' In Hollywood

Former I-J Carrier Boy Signs To Act In Movie Based Upon His Own Play

A young ex-Marinite expects to return to his home county in early 1962—via the motion picture screen.

JEB Pictures of Hollywood has announced plans to film, in wide screen and color, the movie "Horn" based upon a play by Ronald Collier, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Collier of Inverness.

The producers have also announced plans to assign Collier to a brief role in "Horn" to introduce him to the public in preparation for a three picture contract which they have signed with the young actor-author.

Producer-director Bruno VeSota is working with Allen Adrian in adapting the screenplay for "Horn." Pre-production plans for the film have been under way since "Horn" was first presented on a Hollywood stage in 1958.

Casting for the movie version of "Horn" is not yet complete.

Young Collier first showed a marked interest in theater while attending Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley where he appeared in two class plays under the direction of E. C. Bode. As a boy he had delivered the Independent-Journal to subscribers in Inverness, and he later worked as an usher at both the Rafael and Lark theaters.

He began playwrighting while a student at San Francisco State College, with productions of his "Portable Phonograph" at the college, and "Rip" for a children's theater group in San Francisco. In addition to "Horn," Hollywood theater goers have enjoyed his "Three Bits in a Bar" and "Broken Glass."

As an actor, he has appeared in more than 50 major stage roles with San Francisco Interplayers, Marina Players, Cellar Stage, state college and many other troupes. While in southern California he has continued as an actor, having recently completed engagements with John Kerr in "See The Jaguar" and with Carole Eastman in "Victory."

"Horn" will be filmed on location in San Francisco in the Tenderloin area. The drama concerns backstage life in the "strip-joints" of Mason Street, with the conflicts of its natives explored in what Los Angeles critics acclaimed as "an unusual and extremely worthwhile original play."

It is estimated that the JEB production will reach theater screens sometime during the early months of next year.

TELEVISION ACTOR Roy Wright appeared in the original cast of Ronald Collier's play, "Horn," in Hollywood in 1958. Pictured here in a scene from "Horn" with Wright is Caroline Lacey.

A LARGE DECK for both entry and entertainment purposes was designed by architects Wagstaff and McDonald of San Anselmo for the David Dorward home in Kentfield. This provides a large living area, needed because the site, in addition to being well wooded, was also quite steep. (Photos by Ken Molino)

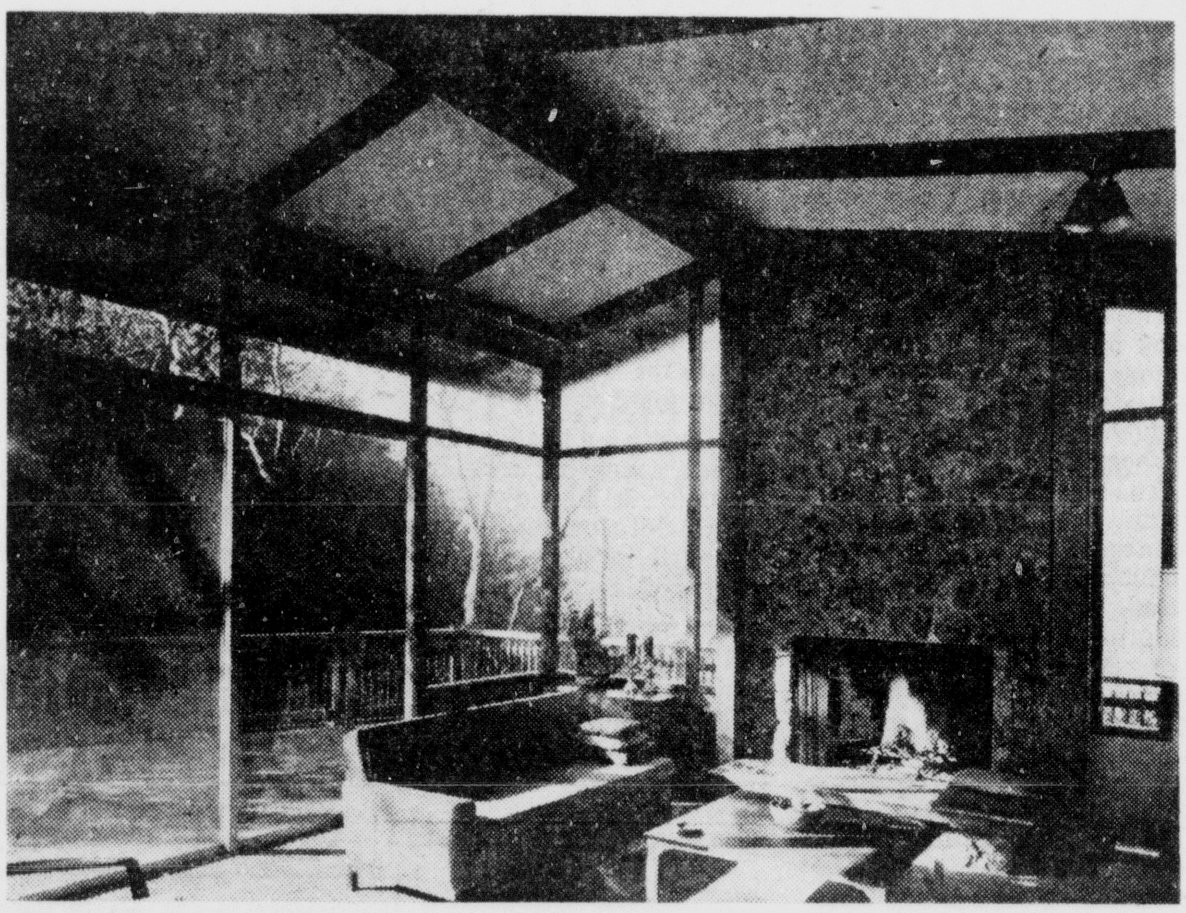

Marin Living

A House To Fit The Site

Mr. and Mrs. David Dorward of Fern Way, Kentfield, asked architects Wagstaff and McDonald and builders H. S. Meinberger & Son to see that their home was wedded to its site—and to give special consideration to the beautiful trees that surround it on all sides.

As the first step toward compliance with that request, the architects decided upon clear heart redwood as their building material, resawn for siding.

A bleaching oil was used to preserve and yet allow the charm and warmth of the redwood to shine through.

FOCAL POINT from the entry hall is this field stone fireplace. The offset ridge beam allows a higher window treatment on the view side of the room. Sheet rock was used between roof rafters.

THE LOW SIDE of the living room opens into the family room, paneled throughout with mahogany and featuring a firehood fireplace in one corner.

Planting In Raised Bed Has Advantages For The Gardener

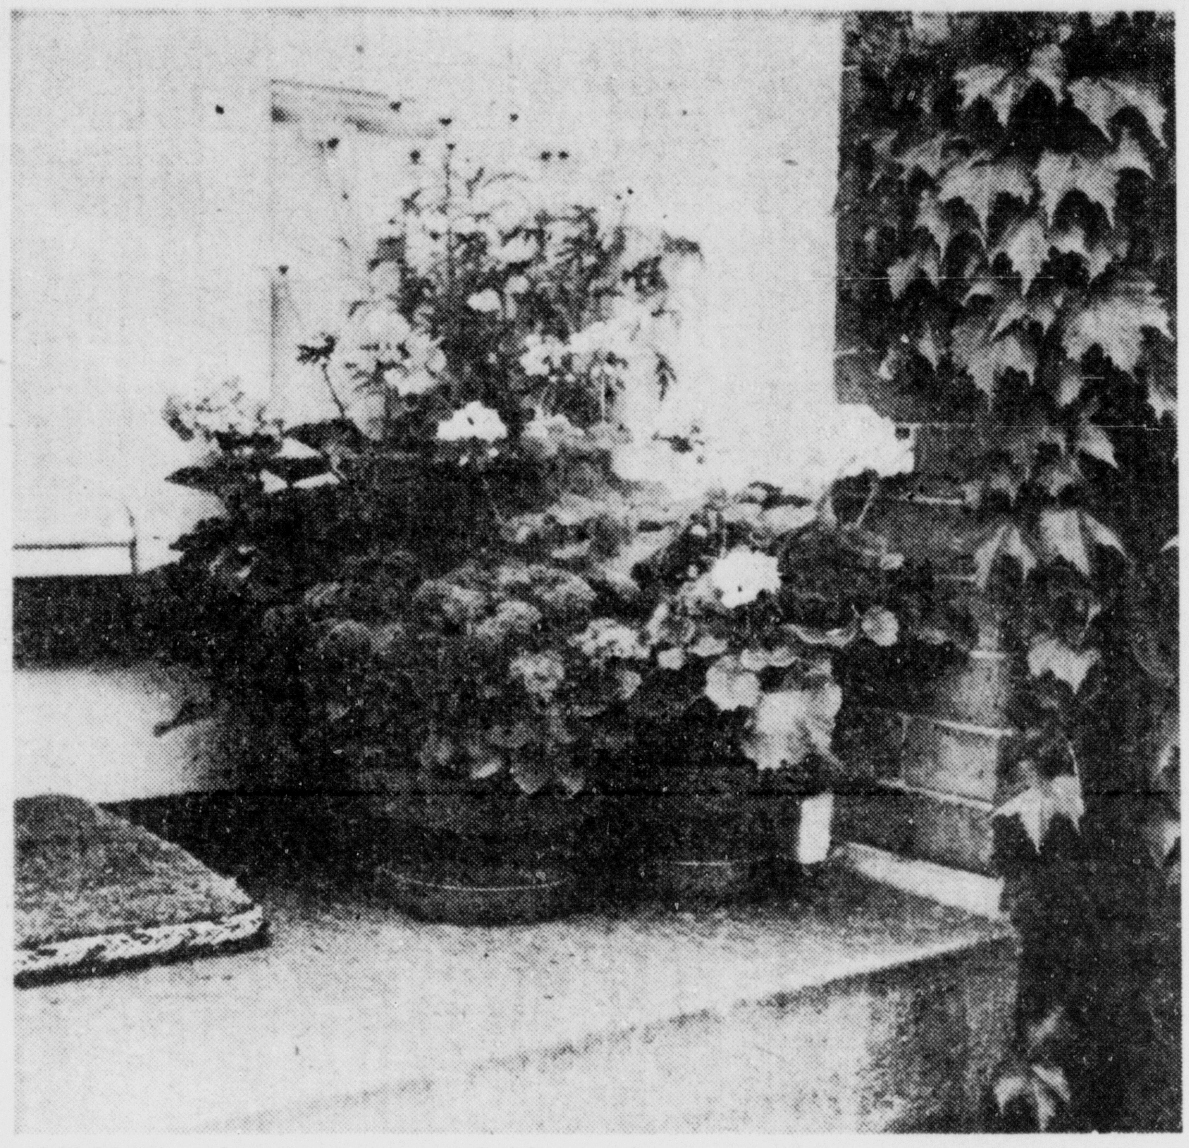

There was a time, presumably, when gardeners did all their gardening at ground level; but don't ask us when. So far as we know, the art of planting in raised beds is almost as old as gardening itself.

There is much to be said for this approach. First off, for obvious reasons, raised beds can save the day when drainage is poor and they should be used invariably in such situations. Secondly, they put plants up where we can see them and permit some to cascade color so appealingly that temptation is strong to grow every blooming thing in a bed that's raised.

We like the latter aspects of raised beds and are constantly on the lookout for a new shrub that likes to tumble downward. One that does and you can count on its fine gray foliage to catch the eye is the little member of the lotus family called parrott's beak. You see it in hanging baskets at many a nursery.

Ground morning glory, a trailing (but not rampant) member of the morning glories, thrives in a sunny raised bed and trails delicate blue flowers through summer. Trailing Pt. Reyes ceanothus will fill a bed and spill over. Its ease of culture, glossy foliage and lovely late spring blooms make it a candidate for any man's garden.

Don't think of trailers only, however, when planning and planting a raised bed. Consider such an area as your own special showcase and play like a mad musician with dwarf conifers, dwarf citrus and all compact material. You can't miss.

A COLORFUL welcome mat is provided by this informal group of summer flowers —pink geraniums, blue agertums and yellow marguerites — in clay pots and saucers. For late season color, the grouping can be replaced with chrysanthemums.

Thumb Test For Your Potted Plant

An important rule in the care of your clay-potted house plants is to make a daily test by pressing your thumb into the topsoil. If it feels moist to the touch and the plant is not wilting, withhold water. Porous clay pots automatically preserve the constant moisture condition your plants' health requires, by leaching excess water out their sides and bottom.

BOTHERED BY "BLEEDING ACORNS"?

This time of year, a common problem is sticky "drip" falling from Live Oaks. This may be nothing more than the effects of a certain weevil in acorns.

While unsightly, this particular problem does not harm the tree—stops when acorns ripen and drop.

However, should you wish an inspection—just to make sure—Sohner experts are happy to do so. No charge or obligation.

For Glossy Good Looks—

If glossy good looks and bright summer bloom are to your liking, glossy abelia will be too. Most important, it is showiest when the garden needs it most.

Abelia is an every man's evergreen, maintaining a handsome front whether you look after it or let it go. It stands drouth, windstorm or salt spray and always looks as though it just stepped out of a shower.

The favorite abelia to be found in California nurserymen's showyards is glossy abelia, a medium sized shrub often seen in foundation plantings. Glossy abelia has bronze-foliage and masses of tubular pinkish-white blooms that start early in summer and last into fall.

Left to its own, the glossy abelia will grow to six feet or more — an informal shrub with arching branches. Too often it is sheared like a privet into a round ball of a shrub with subsequent loss of charm. Better practice would be an annual thinning out of branches to keep the form open and graceful. There is no objection to the shearing, however, if you plant it as a hedge.

Pink abelia is similar, though somewhat smaller all around. It has a naturally open habit that should be encouraged and summer-long blooms of lavender pink.

The most exciting addition to the abelia family is the recently developed prostrate white abelia. Similar in leaf and flower to glossy abelia, it is an ideal choice for parkways and banks that need a good ground cover.

Abelias are not entirely indifferent to soil conditions, though any moderately good garden soil will do. The one thing they don't want is a poorly drained spot. Just avoid this obvious shortcoming and you'll have no trouble.

Full sun is not too much, though part shade is a happier choice. Water will not be unwelcome, but as mentioned above, it's something these durable shrubs can get along well and do without.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Continued pinching and feeding of fuchsias will insure a prolonged bloom and vigorous full plants.
- Petunias and many other annuals that are losing their first bloom can be cut back and fed to encourage a second show of color.
- Sometime this month, you can plant winter sweet peas for color during the holiday season.
- Soil should be banked around the trunks of citrus trees to prevent water from standing in contact with the trunk when you irrigate.
- Feed camellias, azaleas and rhododendrons again this month with a complete acid food. Water it in well.

You Can Use Star Jasmine As Shrubby Vine Or Vining Shrub

There are times, we're sure, when even the star jasmine doesn't know whether it wants to be a vine or a shrub. Climbing is its usual habit, but lacking a place to climb, it forms a shrubby and highly useful ground cover.

Actually, as the California Assn. of Nurserymen points out, it's strictly up to the gardener how he uses star jasmine. He can train it up and onto a trellis, espalier it like a rangy shrub against a lattice, stake it to a spreading pattern on the ground or even cut it back severely and make it fit for a large tub. Fragrant pin-wheel blooms are your reward however you grow it.

Star jasmine is not alone among plants that we class as shrubby vines — or vining shrubs. You can include the cape plumbago: that vigorous mass of blue you see so often in the summer gardens of our state. A vine by classification, it is usually seen as a shrubby jumble of flowers and foliage since most gardeners fail to lend to any support. Train it up a pillar or introduce it to a trellis and thin its rampant growth occasionally for a much more pleasing appearance. Cape plumbago is a good shrub as it carries color over much of the year.

Another shrubby vine to be used either way is angel wing jasmine — a large flowering white jasmine with deep evergreen foliage. This is a good one for post or pillar that can be kept shrubby with regular heading back or pushed to heights overhead on a lattice framework.

Cape honeysuckle is still another vine worth growing either up or down.

Call Them What You Will, They're Great For Garden

Call them buddleias, butterfly bushes or summer lilacs. In each case, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Botanically, they are buddleias. But they do attract butterflies and their bloom resembles a lilac of sorts — hence the common names which any nurseryman will recognize.

Whatever you call them, these unusual shrubs will provide some striking summer blooms for your garden. They are extremely fast growing and ideal for a quick, informal flowering boundary. Their open structure and gray-green foliage have a certain grace, and the long terminal spikes of bloom in various colors have enough eye appeal to keep anyone happy.

ROYAL LAVENDER is a new everblooming climber rose of true lavender with dove gray and warm pink tones. Flowers are borne in clusters of from five to ten. Petals are smooth, firm, long-lasting. The fragrance is novel in roses, reminding one of lilacs in bloom.

You Can Learn More About The Berlin Crisis On TV Tomorrow

THE TELEVISION program with the largest audience during the past week was unquestionably President John F. Kennedy's report to the nation on the current international crisis over Berlin.

That situation will come in for further analysis tomorrow when Franz Josef Strauss, defense minister of the Federal Republic of West Germany, faces American newspaper men on the "Meet the Press" show, seen in this area on KRON at 4 p.m.

Strauss, a controversial figure both on the world scene and in his own country, is currently visiting the United States. He is regarded as one of the most outspoken advocates of a rearmed West Germany. And most observers view him as the No. 2 man in West Germany behind aging Konrad Adenauer.

Wilhelm G. Grewe, West Germany's ambassador to the U.S., will also appear on the show.

"Issues and Answers," seen on KGO at 4:30 p.m., will also turn its attention to foreign affairs tomorrow. Its guest will be Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and one of the most influential members of Congress in the field of international affairs.

ONE OF THE Bay Area's biggest and most colorful art shows is the annual Jack London Art Festival in Oakland. That event is being held this weekend, and for the fourth straight year KTVU will take its cameras to Jack London Square to tour the exhibits tomorrow from 1 to 2 p.m. With Al Helmso presiding over the live telecast, the station promises an unhurried tour of major exhibits and coverage of all prize-winning entries.

MUCH OF SUNDAY'S finest programming can be found, week after week, crammed into two programs viewed during the morning hours on KPIX.

Both "Camera Three," seen at 9 a.m., and "Accent," shown at 11:30 a.m., are consistently stimulating as well as entertaining.

Tomorrow "Camera Three" will sample the virtuosity of Wilbur de Paris and his New Orleans jazz band. Numbers will range from the hymn, "Just a Closer Walk With Thee," through such jazz favorites as "Mardi Gras Rag" and "Walking the Dog" to "The Charleston."

"Accent" remains in Europe for tomorrow's show and will offer an interview in Paris of French film director Jean Renoir, son of the famous impressionist painter. Jean Renoir, now 70, will talk about his father and his friendship with the likes of Cezanne and Van Gogh. A part of the program was filmed in the Moulin de la Galette, the dance hall Pierre Auguste Renoir immortalized in one of his greatest canvases.

TWO SENATORS, Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Republican Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, will argue the question: "Are the Administration's Foreign Aid Proposals Sound?", tonight on "The Nation's Future," at 9:30 over KRON. Humphrey, the foreign aid advocate, is just back from a fact-finding tour of aid recipient nations in Europe.

THE BIG EVENT of the weekend for the sports fans will be tomorrow's coverage (1:30 p.m. on KPIX) of the final round of the 43rd annual Professional Golfers Assn. National Championships from Olympia Fields Country Club in Chicago. Chris Schenkel, Tom Harmon and John Derr are the sportscasters.

Tonight's televised boxing match on KGO at 7 o'clock will feature a world champion, welterweight Emile Griffith, but his bout will be a non-title 10-rounder with middleweight Yama Bahama in Madison Square Garden.

THE SECOND of the two 1961 major league all-star baseball games will be played Monday in Boston's Fenway Park, and KRON will carry the action. Coverage will start at 11:45 a.m. with Curt Gowdy and Joe Garagiola doing the play-by-play.
